McGovern sees tapes as key to impeachment

WASHINGTON (AP) — If President Nixon flouts a court order to release White House tapes, Congress must seriously consider impeachment, says Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D.

But Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson says Nixon has made "a very strong case" for not turning over the tapes to the Watergate special prosecutor, Archibald Cox.

The two statements were made during television interviews Sunday. Meanwhile, a Gallup Poll commissioned by The New York Times showed that 56 per cent of those who watched the President's latest speech on the subject believe he should turn the tapes over to the courts and the Senate Watergate committee.

McGovern, interviewed on CBS's "Face the Nation," said the tape dispute may go all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court.

"When that process is completed, if the Supreme Court holds the President of the United States must turn over the tapes and other evidence in his possession bearing on this case, and he refuses, then there is no recourse except for the Congress to give serious consideration to impeachment," McGovern said.

He said the Nixon administration should "go beyond the mere legal requirements and to open up and give us the facts ...."

Richardson said on ABC's "Issues and Answers": "I believe that the constitutional basis on which the President's brief rests is, in the light of the few cases bearing on it, a strong case."

However, Richardson said later that the issue "is a very closely balanced one."

Richardson said that on one side there is "the ability of the President ... to conduct his office on a basis which necessarily requires the confidentiality of communications to him."

On the other hand, he said, there is the factor that the tapes might be credible evidence in the grand jury investigation.

Asked if Nixon has the authority to refuse to release the tapes if ordered by the courts, Richardson said: "I have only the indication of Mr. (Gerald L.) Warren that if there is a definitive court result, that the President would, as he would in any situation, obey the requirements of the law."

Richardson declined to discuss details of the investigation into alleged political corruption in Maryland which has been said to involve Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

However, he did say that no material dealing with Agnew has been presented to the Baltimore grand jury probing the case. Richardson said it will be his decision whether or not to try to indict Agnew.

Cox is trying to get tape recordings of nine meetings involving the President in which Watergate was discussed. The existence of the tapes was disclosed at the Senate Watergate hearings.

The committee also has subpoenaed some of the tapes and documents, and the U.S. District Court has been asked to rule also in that matter.

The Gallup Poll commissioned by The New York Times was conducted by telephone Thursday night from a national sample of 810 adults. Experts say the margin of error can be as much as 4 percentage points either way in a sample of that size, the Times said.

The poll also indicated that 44 per cent of the people who watched Nixon's televised Watergate speech Wednesday felt it was not convincing. The Times said that only 27 per cent found the talk "completely" or "quite a lot" convincing.

In another development, Time magazine is reporting that convicted Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt is resentful that "prime conspirators" are free while he is in jail.

Hunt, serving a provisional 35-year sentence at the federal prison in Danbury, Conn., was quoted in an interview as being upset that higher ranking men who planned the break-in, including Jeb Stuart Magruder, remain free.

Magruder served as deputy director of the Nixon re-election campaign. Thursday, he pleaded guilty in federal court here to a single count of conspiracy stemming from Watergate. Sentencing was put off.

Meanwhile, a journalist who says she was sent to spy on McGovern told a New York radio station that she doubted that her information was of much use.

Mrs. Lucianne Cummings Goldberg had earlier told The Washington Star-News that she was paid $1,000 a week by

Plot to kill Nixon today uncovered

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) —Plans for a presidential motorcade through New Orleans were cancelled today after the Secret Services said it had uncovered a "possible conspiracy to assassinate the President" during his visit to the city.

President Nixon was flying here from Florida to address the 74th annual convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, his first public appearance in six weeks.

Before he left, a White House spokesman said the scheduled motorcade through the city was being abandoned as a result of an investigation by the Secret Service, the FBI and the New Orleans Police Department.

New Orleans police were asked by the Secret Service to arrest a former policeman who was described as armed and extremely dangerous.

Police declined to say whether the former policeman, identified as Edward M. Gaudet, alias "Punchy," was wanted in connection with the President's visit.

In Washington, Secret Service spokesman Jack Warner said: "Over the past week we have received information over a possible conspiracy to assassinate the President during his visit to New Orleans this date."

Warner said it was believed more than one person was involved.

Disclosure of the reported conspiracy followed a highly unusual public statement by the service urging Nixon not to make the motorcade trip.

Warner said the information on the alleged plot came from "police sources." He noted that although the motorcade had been cancelled, the President apparently "has accepted the risk" of continuing the remainder of his travel plans.

Warner said that neither the new route Nixon would take into the city nor the mode of transporation would be disclosed. He added that security had been increased as a result of the report.

The call to pick up Gaudet went out shortly after it was reported that New Orleans Police Supt. Clarence Giarrusso's car and a policeman's uniform had been stolen.

Gaudet was arrested on Aug. 14, 1970 when Nixon drove through the French Quarter in a motorcade. He was charged with attempting to desecrate a flag by burning it and throwing it on the President's car.

He had been off the police force nearly three years at the time of that arrest. On July 25, 1967, he was "allowed to resign" after being involved in an incident during which a firearm was discharged during a fight.

Giarrusso's car, a 1973 Oldsmobile with no police markings, was taken about 2 a.m. from the driveway of his suburban Algiers home. It was recovered about 7 a.m. near Lake Pontchartrain, across the city.

As originally planned, the motorcade would have been a short five blocks along Canal Street, stretching from Bourbon Street, familiar to generations of tourists, to the Rivergate convention center.

The big convention hall is located near the Mississippi River on Canal Street. During the weekend, radio and television advertisements urged families to turn out for the motorcade and a sizable noontime crowd was expected.

Nixon has not made a speech in public since he went to Kansas City for the swearing in of FBI Chief Clarence M. Kelley on his way home from California July 9.

Once again, the President is making a brief stopover visit. This time, he is on his way to the Western White House for a California stay that is expected to last through Labor Day.

He is making it an occasion, though, for displaying the top aides of his Watergate-reorganized White House staff.

National Security Adviser Henry A. Kissinger was coming from Washington to join the presidential party in New Orleans and also to receive a VFW award of his own for foreign policy achievements.

Governmental force puts down coup in Laos

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Laotian government troops today crushed a right-wing general's attempt to overthrow Premier Souvanna Phouma and torpedo a pending agreement on coalition government with the Hanoi-backed Pathet Lao.

The coup leader, exiled Gen. Thao Ma, a former commander of the Laotian air force, was reported killed when a T28 bomber he had commandeered crash-landed after being hit by ground fire.

The uprising, mounted by Thao Ma from his exile in Thailand, lasted only 10 hours. Prince Souvanna Phouma went on national radio at midday and told his people: "The coup has failed."

The premier imposed a dusk-to-dawn curfew on Vientiane but said it probably would be necessary only for tonight. The capital's airport and all border crossings remained closed

"Government troops and police had shown a complete loyalty and devotion to the cause of national unity," Souvanna Phoma later told diplomats in an hour-long meeting in his private dining room.

"The kingdom remains completely quiet while government troops showed themselves to be completely behind the government."

The premier said he had telephoned the Pathet Lao delegation in Vientiane at midmorning to tell them they were safe and not to worry. It is the negotiations with the Pathet Lao, in which the Communist-backed insurgents are expected to win wide powers, that prompted Thao Ma's rightist coup attempt.

Souvanna Phouma said two government troops were killed during a bombing run by the Thao Ma rebels on a military camp on the outskirts of Vientiane. The rebel casualty count was not immediately known but sources said the toll was light.

It was Thao Ma's second unsuccessful attempt to overthrow Prince Souvanna Phouma, who is classed as a neutralist. The general had been an exile in Thailand since his first attempted coup, in 1966.

The 42-year-old general and a small force of supporters crossed the Mekong River by boat shortly after midnight and seized the Vientiane airport about 3 a.m. They commandeered some of the T28 fighterbombers that are the Laotian air force's chief weapon and strafed and bombed the Chee Mai No army base four miles down the Mekong from Vientiane.

But the rebels got no support from other military units. Loyal troops moved through the streets of Vientiane and surrounded the residence of Prince Souvanna Phouma. Army forces moved out of the city to the airport, and by noon the premier was on the air to announce that the attempted coup had been foiled.

Life in Vientiane continued at its usual relaxed pace, and by early afternoon the airport reopened to commercial traffic.

Thao Ma's plane was reported hit as he was attacking the army camp. Sources said he crashed several hundred yards from the airport.

Prime rate hiked to new peak

NEW YORK (AP) — First National Bank of Chicago announced today that effective Tuesday it was raising its prime rate to 9½ per cent, the highest in history.

The move was not unexpected since lending money remains in short supply. Other banks were expected to follow suit soon, credit analysts said.

Some analysts have predicted the rate may hit 10 per cent or higher before beginning to level off.

The prime rate is the minimum lending rate banks charge their largest and most credit-worthy corporate customers. While it is not directly tied to rates on small business and consumer loans, an increase in the prime rate frequently is an indication of higher interest rates generally and a tightening money supply.

The move by the Chicago bank, the nation's 10th largest commercial bank, comes a little more than a week after a prime rate of 9¼ per cent became industrywide. The prime rate has been increased 13 times this year previous to today. It began the year at 6 per cent.

The credit analysts have attributed the soaring prime rate to tremendous demand by corporations for loans for expansion to meet heavy consumer demands for goods and services, and to actions by the Federal Reserve Board to tighten the money supply.

Previous to the present series of increases, the record prime rate was 8½ per cent occurring during the money crunch era of 1969-1970 when many corporations found it impossible to find sources of loans.

The credit analysts have said the present era differs from then because loans are available, although at high interests, and corporations have found consumer demands so high that it often is profitable for them to borrow money even at the skyrocketing interest rates.

Greeks pledged new democracy

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — President George Papadopoulos has renewed his pledge to restore the parliamentary system to Greece next year. But it will be considerably different from the democracy his military coup ended six years ago.

"I declare before the Greek nation that I will keep strictly to the announced schedule regarding the stage-by-stage establishment of the democratic order,"

An AP News Analysis

Papadopoulos then went on to make a series of startling announcements:

—The lifting of martial law immediately, the restoration of all civil liberties and the reinstatement of suspended articles of the constitution.

—Amnesty to all political prisoners including Alexander Panagoulis, serving a life sentence for trying to assassinate Papadopoulos.

—Establishment of a constitutional court to legalize political parties in preparation for election of a parliament next year.

That parliament will not be responsible for defense; the maintenance of public order, meaning the police; or foreign policy. Those are reserved by the republican constitution for the president, the post to which Papadopoulos was elected unopposed in a referendum July 29.

There was no indication whether the constitutional court would permit any attempt to revive the parties that existed

Ordered bombraids, Nixon says

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — President Nixon acknowledged for the first time today that he ordered secret bombing raids in Cambodia one month after he took office in 1969.

Lashing out at critics of his Indochina policies, the President said in a statement released as he addressed the Veterans of Foreign Wars convention here that the raids were necessary to protect American lives.

He said if he faced the same decision today, he would take the same action.

When he took office in January 1969, Nixon said, 40,000 North Vietnamese troops had taken over a 10-mile-wide stretch in Cambodia alongside the South Vietnamese border.

"The Communists had made a mockery of the neutrality of those border regions," Nixon said. "The United States was under no moral obligation to respect the sham."

Nixon said he ordered U.S. airpower "employed directly and continually" against Communist base areas in Cambodia and said the Cambodian government "did not object to the strikes."

"In fact," Nixon added, "while strikes were in progress Prince Sihanouk invited me to make a state visit to the Cambodian capital."

The raids were never announced —a fact that has stirred recent controversy —because secrecy was necessary to save American lives, Nixon said.

"Had we announced the air strikes," Nixon said, "the Cambodian government would have been compelled to protest; the bombing would have had to stop; and American soldiers would have paid for the disclosure with their lives."

Nixon said the bombing was disclosed to unspecified government and congressional leaders.

Fires out of control

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ten fires remained out of control on more than 110,000 acres of range and forest lands in the West today as fire fighting efforts focused on Northern California near Yosemite National Park.

Information officer Dick Klade of the Interagency Fire Center in Boise, Idaho, said the most critical fire today was the 12,000-acre Granite fire in Stanislaus National Forest about three miles west of Yosemite National Park.

A large granite ridge kept the blaze from entering the park, however, and with 2,600 men on the fire lines, containment was expected by 6 p.m. PDT today. The U.S. Forest Service said the fire apparently was caused by humans.

Klade said the blazes in four states were being fought by 6,500 trained forest fire fighters and 2,000 support personnel, mainly National Guardsmen and volunteers. He said that was 80 per cent of the nation's firefighting capacity.

U.S. 50 between Sly Park and Meyers, Calif., remained closed as some 900 smokejumpers fought to control a 3,000-acre fire.

The only new fire reported since Saturday was an 8,000acre range fire being handled by the Bureau of Land Management north of Susanville, Calif.

Klade said 156,735 acres have been blackened by the fires. Affected land included major big game reserves in Montana and northern Idaho, timber in Oregon and Northern California and range lands in Oregon and Montana.

The fire center gave this breakdown by states of major fires out of control, the acreage they affect and total acreage burned:

—California: four fires out of control on 26,000 acres with 42,950 acres burned.

—Nevada: one on 3,000 acres; 3,150 burned.

—Montana: eight on 57,000 acres; 59,350 burned.

—Idaho: two on 5,000 acres; 32,285 burned.

—Wyoming: none; 150 burned.

John Russell, a fire center spokesman, said no deaths have been reported among firefighters. However, a U.S. Forestry Service spokesman said one man was killed in an auto accident when he fell asleep at the wheel after working long hours ferrying firefighters.

Officials said forests in southeastern Washington, northeastern Oregon and parts of northern Idaho were extremely vulnerable because of dead trees due to a tussock moth infestation.

And the center said lightning storms in southern Idaho, northern Utah and western Montana are starting new fires.

Although the Oregon fire situation eased Sunday, control of a 6,000-acre fire near LaGrande was not expected until Tuesday. The fire destroyed nine buildings Thursday near the eastern Oregon town of 10,000.

"As I told the children, a house is just a house. We all got out. That's what counts," said Mrs. Wesley Allen, wife of a LaGrande physician. Their 1½-year-old, $70,000 home was one of the nine buildings.

"I looked out the door and there was a wall of flames bursting over the hill with the most terrible explosive roar," she said. "We all jumped in the car and bounced down the driveway; and by the

Visibility may mean survival to motorcyclist

Anyone who mounts the saddle of a motorcycle has got to think about survival.

Accidents come easy for the cyclist. He has all the hazards of automobile travel plus several more. In addition, when an accident occurs it is likely to be spectacular and the injuries severe. The cyclist doesn't have the built-in protection of an automobile, imperfect as that is.

A prominent middle-aged man in an eastern city decided to abandon the bumper-to-bumper rush hour scene in favor of a motorcycle with its convenience and economy. It was no one's fault, really, and it was a low-speed accident. But that split second when the auto driver couldn't see the motorcycle in the intersection left the cyclist a mass of broken bones. After months in the hospital he recovered enough to return to work, but he will spend the rest of his life knowing pain in his deformed and crippled body.

Visibility.

That's the message government safety experts are sounding to try to prevent such accidents: if you get on a motorcycle be sure the cars and trucks on the road can see you.

During the day, bright-colored clothing and headlights help. At night they suggest lavish use of retro-reflective material on clothing and sides of the motorcycle (in addition to headlights). This is the same material that is used to produce the highway and street signs that light up at night.

The safety helmet continues to be the best single factor in cutting death and injury risk when accidents occur. And they do occur: 328,000 in 1971 with 2,410 fatalaties.

So important is the safety helmet that nearly every state has passed strict laws requiring their use. It was too late, however, for young Joe P. who was a passenger on a motorcycle ride home from a nearby college town in a southern state. The driver died instantly; Joe lay in a coma for weeks, awakening finally with severe brain damage. He lives in apparent good physical health, but the once-promising young man will eventually move into an institution after his parents can no longer care for him at home.

In his case, the helmet would have reduced the risk dramatically and might have saved his companion. Only California, Wyoming, Iowa, Illinois and Mississippi still lack helmet laws. Traffic safety estimates indicate there will be 600 motorcycle fatalities in California alone this year, 150 of which would be prevented with helmet use.

There are other protections recommended by the injury control specialists at the Bureau of Community Environmental Management.

Goggles or face-shield, to improve vision and protect against flying gravel, etc., should be worn.

Tough clothing will help absorb the scrapes, scratches, cuts and bumps. Recommended are leather jackets and gloves, sturdy trousers and footgear even in hot weather.

Fascinating fabrics

Questions from readers answered

BY FRANCES DIETRICH

The volume of mail and the great variety of questions from readers about types of fabrics shows the need for a one-stop source of fiber and fabric information such as this column. From time to time, questions of general interest will be answered in this column and as many personal inquiries will be answered as possible.

Mrs. D., Pasadena, Calif., writes; "The fuzz from our new nylon short-pile carpeting literally jumps onto my slacks. What can I do?"

The cause is a combination of nylon's static electricity and shedding. Hopefully, the slacks are washable. A fabric softener should be used in the final rinse or sprayed in the drier. This produces an anti-static effect. It is a temporary measure, which should be repeated every third or fourth washing.

Loose fibers are normally found in all new carpeting, especially cut pile and shag construction. They are merely loose bits left in the carpet during manufacture. Shedding does not affect the life of the carpet or its quality. With vacuuming, the loose fibers will become less and less of a problem, though it may take months for all to work their way up to the surface.

Mrs. A., Bellaire, Ohio, writes: "I work in a furniture store, and when I suggest olefin upholstered furniture instead of some of the fancier fabrics that will not give years of wear, some people say, 'It doesn't hold up.' What about it? Also, why can't we find all-olefin fabric in a formal matelasse or tapestry? They all seem to be tweeds or plaids."

This saleswoman's customers, who knock olefin, have the wrong idea. It is wise of her to want to get the answer. Quality olefin upholstery fabric has topmost durability.

It is true that olefin has been featured in tweedy, subdued color styling for family rooms. There are several reasons for this. Olefin was first made in thick fibers used in sturdy yarn and a tight weave. These factors, plus the natural toughness of the fiber, combined to make for the kind of livability where everybody and the dog can jump on the sofa without reprimand.

The low-key colors are a characteristic of olefin. Being a moisture resistant fiber, it does not accept dyes with the same clarity and brightness of wool and nylon. But this is not considered a drawback for childproof furniture.

Mrs. A. however, quite rightly visualizes that olefin's durability would be desirable in dressier upholstery fabrics. Gayer colors would make olefin more attractive to the customer who buys for color and texture. Checking this out, I find that a finer denier olefin suitable for the matelasse and tapestry types is now being produced; and the fabrics being styled by furniture manufacturers. Producers are finding more effective ways to dye the fiber or print the fabric.

Mrs. B., Omaha, Neb., sent a sample of lacy polyester knit with the question: "Must I line a dress of this fabric? I wear size 14 and am considered a senior citizen, if that makes any difference." Polyester crepe or Polysibonne is suggested to prevent it clinging to curves and to make it more pleasant to wear, as the fabric has a slightly scratchy surface. The "hand" was due to the polyester and the raised design. A silk sample, soft and fairly loosely woven, also was enclosed. The question about underlining being "stiff or pliable" is answered again with polyester crepe. This is compatible to the softness of the silk and will contribute to longer wear.

Inconspicuous watches

People link the word "fob" with watches, yet it had other uses and stemmed originally from the German "fuppe" meaning a small pocket, according to the Jewelry Industry Council. The idea of a watch fob appears to have been introduced by the Puritans. They conceded a watch was essential, yet frowned upon the custom of wearing their bulky watches dangling from ostentatious neck chains. They solved that by wearing a short chain and fob, keeping the watch in an inside pocket, hidden from the public eye, except for a conspicuous bulge.

The convenience and utility of wearing a watch on the wrist or lapel has changed all that. Moreover, watches are now so attractive and come in such a variety of designs for most occasions, that they have become habitual items of wearing apparel. They are no longer — as they once doubtless seemed to the Puritans — massive display symbols of pomp and circumstance.

That bird in the hand may quickly fly away

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD

As we grow older, we learn how to say things elegantly. For example, South claimed that he was the victim of an optical illusion in today's hand. Very elegant. When South was a little boy, however, his mother used to tell him that his eyes were bigger than his stomach.

West opened the deuce of clubs, and South ruffed. Declarer drew three rounds of trumps and then led the ten of spades for a finesse.

The hand looked fairly simple. South needed either the spade finesse or the diamond finesse to make his slam. At least that's the way it appeared.

When South led the ten of spades for a finesse, East casually played low. This was, of course, the best defense. If East took the first spade trick, the rest of dummy's spades would give South all the discards he needed.

South thought that this trick settled his choice between the spade and diamond finesses. "A bird in the hand," he muttered, "is worth two in the bush." After corning this phrase, South led his other spade and finessed with dummy's jack.

East pounced on this trick with the king of spades and returned a club. Now South might huff and puff, but he still had to lose a diamond trick for down one.

SOUTH WAS GREEDY

South was just greedy when he took the second spade finesse. After the 10 of spades won, South could make sure of the slam by taking the ace of spades and getting to work on the diamonds. If the diamond finesse worked, he would make an extra trick, but his slam was safe even if the diamond finesse should lose.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold: S- A Q J 9 5 H- A 3 D- J 6 4 C- 10 8 4. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one spade. You have 12 points in high cards and one point for the doubleton. You can afford to open a 13-point hand when you have a strong rebiddable major suit and at least two quick tricks.

Diabetes may be controlled if detected early, doctors report

Diabetes! Is it a scare word to you? Does it conjure up words like coma, early death or a lifetime regimen of shots and measuring your diet?

Indeed diabetes can be a killer disease. But the greatest fear should be as much from having it without knowing it as from the disease itself.

Medical advances have made it possible to control the disease so effectively that most people who have it need not be seriously impaired. Diabetics are found in the ranks of athletes, businessmen, housewives, factory workers, politicians, farmers, growing kids, all living worthwhile productive lives. Their lives are being prolonged dramatically, as long as they take the extra care necessary to keep diabetes from taking its rapid toll if unchecked.

But diabetes is unchecked in the estimated 2 million people who are hidden diabetics whose symptoms are nonexistent or so mild they don't realize it.

Government health specialists have tried to spotlight the importance of finding these hidden diabetics not only because of the cost in dollars for medical care, lost man-hours from absenteeism or early death, but also because of the suffering from blindness, kidney and heart trouble caused by diabetes.

What is diabetes? While doctors don't know what causes it or how to cure it, they do know a lot about it. They do know that the pancreas produces either no insulin or not enough to utilize properly the sugars and starches the diabetic eats. This in turn interferes with the body's handling of fats and protein. They do know the sugar build-up in the body will lead to serious consequences: Poor circulation, heart disease, blindness, infection, kidney failure, high blood pressure, stroke. It's a sneaky disease when these problems can be accumulating without the victim's being aware of it.

There's only one way to be sure and that is to have a blood or urine test.

Some, usually those developing it later in life have a mild form which can be controlled by diet; they eat a well balanced diet in which sugars and starches are restricted. Others can take pills which will stimulate the body's production of insulin. Still others need to take regular insulin injections.

Last year Marian S. learned that she has diabetes after a routine physical examination. True, she'd been extra-tired lately and her eyes had been bothering her but as a school teacher just turning 50 she didn't consider she had symptoms of anything but her age and some long nights of grading papers. The diagnosis had special meaning because she had watched her sister live with a severe form of diabetes since she was three.

Fortunately the use of insulin injections and carefully planned diet had prolonged her life far beyond what it would have been a few years earlier before insulin was discovered. She'd had a normal childhood and married life and is still working at her profession parttime although she has begun to feel some of the debilitating effects that juvenile-onset diabetes inexorably brings. But Marian's case is far different from her sister's. No insulin was even suggested; she took pills for a time but now is able to control her diabetes by diet alone. She has reduced her weight and exercises more. And she's still teaching, full steam ahead.

In many ways Mary is typical of most new cases found each year — women, over 40, diabetic relatives, few overt symptoms such as drowsiness, thirst, frequent urination, excessive appetite, weight loss.

Here are four key questions to ask yourself to see if you could be a hidden diabetic: Are you over 40? Are there any diabetics in your family? Are you overweight? Have you had any babies that weighed over nine pounds at birth?

Every yes answer increases your chances. Chronic disease control specialists with the HEW Health Services and Mental Health Administration recommend that you find out for sure from your doctor or health clinic. The test is simple and painless. Even if you are not in the high risk group, find out anyway. If diabetes is diagnosed, you can learn to adjust to the demands of diet and medication. Then the fear once associated with diabetes can give way to a sensible new approach to a fulfilling life.

Sunglasses help prevent winter glare

By AP Newsfeatures

In advice to winter drivers, Dr. Alden Haffner, board of member of the advisory board of The Society for Visual Care explains that "sunglasses lessen the glare of snow created when it scatters light." The situation encourages serious visual difficulties and eye discomfort which can lead to accidents, cautioned the doctor, who is also executive director of the Optometric Center of New York. He suggests also that sunglasses be gray rather than green because "green has a tendency to distort the red end of the spectrum."

Some non-prescription sunglass lenses can distort red colors such as tail lights and stop lights in front of you making them seem closer than they are, he says.

Wipe the automobile hood clean so glare will be eliminated. It will also eliminate the danger of snow blowing back off the hood and onto the windshield, blinding the driver. And windshield should be wiped clean. Ice and snow can be removed with de-icing fluid or by letting the motor run before starting a trip.

Screens soften driveway lines

A driveway is a necessary part of a modern home, but generally is not a decorative feature. This can be remedied by adding a screen of western wood on one side.

On a flat lot, a decorative screen, combined with plants on both sides softens the regular lines of the driveway. Extending the screen around the entry adds privacy for a sitting area. On a sloping lot, three or more separate screens set at an angle to the driveway lend a graceful look. Douglas fir and western cedar are popular choices for outdoor projects.

Ann Landers

Behavior too freaky for words

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I are in our late forties. He is a professional man, well-respected, affectionate, and I love him. Unfortunately, my sexual desires have decreased in recent years and his seem to have increased. I have tried to fake it but I am not very good at pretending.

I am becoming concerned about his behavior, which I think is abnormal. My husband has gone in for far-out leather and rubber outfits in a big way. He has spent a small fortune on pants, leather shirts, boots, gloves and a motorcycle helmet although he doesn't own a motorcycle. Last week he bought a rubber storm suit, complete with boots that go clear up to his hips. He wore that outfit in the house all day Saturday.

This afternoon he put on that same get-up, handed me two lengths of rope and asked me to tie his legs together and his arms behind his back. I was flabbergasted. He said it would relieve his sexual tensions and he hoped I would cooperate. I told him the whole thing was too freaky for words and I refused to do it.

What does this bizarre behavior mean? Was I wrong not to cooperate? He is a fine man and all this leather and rubber stuff plus the clothesline has me completely bewildered. Can you explain it?—Conn. Concerned

Dear C. C.: I wouldn't even try, and I urge you to see someone who can. Ask your doctor to recommend a psychiatrist. Make an appointment to discuss your husband's behavior so you can help him. Normal he isn't.

Dear Ann Landers: Sometimes people write to air their grievances. This is why I'm writing. I address my complaint to welfare workers.

My husband and I love children. We have a large, comfortable home and a lot of love to give. About 15 years ago we spent $13,000 remodeling so we could take in several foster children. Welfare has given us retarded youngsters as well as teen-age prostitutes and dope addicts. Our home has been set on fire, money stolen, our cat was strangled and our lives threatened.

No one ever told us these children weren't normal. My husband and I are not psychiatrists. We are not competent to deal with children who hear voices, maim themselves and set fires. We realize these children need care, but is it fair to place them with lay people when the welfare worker knows they should be in an institution?

If this letter evokes some screams around the country, I say, fine, scream away. Sign me—Let's Keep It Honest

Dear Let's: There must be another side to this story—one that only a welfare worker can tell. When I receive it, I'll print it. Thank you for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: Today was our son's fourth birthday. I let him invite eight little friends in for games, ice cream and cake. I asked the mothers not to bring presents. I have strong feelings about over-indulged children who are toy crazy. They don't know what to play with next. Also, I don't want our son to associate friendship with gifts.

Some of the mothers said I was wrong. One mother said I was being unfair to my son. Two mothers ignored my request and brought gifts anyway. What is your opinion? —Idaho Falls

Dear Ida: I applaud your good sense. An orchid to you for your courage to buck the custom. A skunk cabbage to those mothers who brought gifts anyway.

Problem of runaways has no easy solution

The problem of the runaway minor is another of those family and social problems that ends up in the laps of the police department. And the police unfortunately don't have the manpower or the system to handle it.

If the parent doesn't bother to report his child missing, or if the youngster decides to go to places far off, there's little the police department can do.

There is no nationwide or even statewide missing persons bulletin that can be sent out these days, said Det. Sgt. George Weaver, of the Appleton police juvenile bureau. The police can send a missing person message to another district only if they have information indicating the missing runaway is probably there.

The problem of runaways and the danger of nobody's knowing their whereabouts was dramatically brought out in the mass homosexual killings of 27 youngsters in Houston, Tex., reported earlier this month.

While local and Outagamie County authorities said they could recall no area runaway's being a victim of a serious crime — but rather more often the perpetrator, as a means of getting money — they said they were becoming more and more concerned about the problem.

Police forces and sheriff's departments don't have the manpower normally to aggressively investigate every reported runaway.

If the growing numbers of runaways were reported everywhere, authorities would be overwhelmed with names and descriptions.

Weaver and Joseph Vanden Oever, county sheriff's investigator and juvenile officer said most runaways reported haven't left the city, or at least the Fox Cities area. Most also are staying with friends and are gone probably only a couple of days.

"But," said Vanden Oever, "at times, they're headaches." We really don't have the people to work on the problem; we can't do much about it."

The police and sheriff's department rely mainly on information provided by the parents, including a list of friends. With this, they can check out the most likely place the runaways are staying, or in the case of friends, possibly learn where the runaway went.

"We make a special effort the first week or two to follow up leads," Vanden Oever said. "After that, the thing lies dormant until the kid might get picked up in another area for one reason or another."

The sheriff's department has a policy of picking up and identifying youngsters found hitchhiking along U.S. 41, and the police department will pick up youngsters hitchhiking in the city at unusually late hours. They have state law authority to do this, but they agree this is at best a hit and miss effort.

The number of reported runaways nearly doubled between 1971 and 1972 in Appleton, rising from 121 to 206. Weaver expects it to be even higher this year.

The county has had 130 so far this year, with a small amount of overlap on city police reports.

The runaways, according to Weaver, are recorded in age groups, with the highest number being in ages 13, 14 and 15 years old. The problem almost always is discord at home.

When a local runaway is found, he may voluntarily return home, or be taken home. Or authorities may decide going home at least immediately isn't

38 pct. of food items cost more

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN
Post-Crescent staff writer

It's costing you more for food in the Fox Cities now than it did in mid-July, especially if you're eating pork chops, chuck roast, eggs and certain dairy products, a survey of a few Fox Cities area grocery stores has indicated.

Up to 21 food and nonfood items considered common purchases were surveyed in each of five stores a month ago and last week. The results indicated that 38 per cent of the items increased in price, 18 per cent dropped and 44 per cent were unchanged.

All five stores showed increases in the price of pork chops, chicken, butter, eggs and milk. Of these, two stores had 50-cent increases in pork chop prices; all had at least 24-cent increases in egg prices, and butter prices rose 2 to 13 cents per pound.

Two stores had 40- and 30-cent increases in the per pound price of chuck roast.

The most noticeable declining price was at two stores where lettuce heads advertised as large and solid were on special at 19 cents, down from 39 cents.

Generally holding steady were the old reliables — cookies, coffee, liquid detergent, fabric softener, paper towels, a name-brand salad dressing and sugar.

In the survey, locally owned and chain stores were checked. One store outside the urban area was included.

Spokesmen at the stores said their prices hadn't risen dramatically last week with the lifting of the freeze. The ceiling price still is on beef.

The items for the survey were chosen by the Associated Press as part of its market-basket mix and by recommendation by a food specialist from the state Department of Agriculture. Name brand items and those of identical quantity were used to produce a fair comparison.

The meat products from each store were presumed to be of the same cut and quality in each of the survey periods, although this is almost impossible to determine.

The combined surveyed items in individual stores increased from 3.8 to 14.76 per cent in different stores while store ranged from six to ten. Up to three the number of items increasing in price per store ranged from six to ten. Up to three items decreased in price per any single store and six to eight remained unchanged.

Of the items available, the total dollar increase for a single unit or pound of each was 41 cents to $2.05. No store had all 21 items available for checking in both survey periods.

The items and their prices in each store for mid-July and mid-August are:

Grand jury on drugs expected to convene

Fox Valley persons, including suspected heroin pushers and users, apparently were to testify today or soon before a federal grand jury that has been convened periodically for over a year in Milwaukee.

U.S. Atty. Terry Mitchell, Milwaukee, said the new testimony being sought was in connection with hard drug and heroin trafficking and represents part of the continuing effort by federal, state and local law enforcement officials to crack down on the problem.

The grand jury is concerned with only the eastern half of the state, which is its jurisdiction, he said.

Mitchell said he didn't know the number of Fox Valley persons who have been subpoenaed, but he knew that some had.

Other valley persons believed to have valuable information also have been subpoenaed. The county's narcotics agent is in Milwaukee today, presumably to testify.

Local and county law enforcement personnel apparently assisted in the investigation primarily by providing names of suspected pushers and users of hard drugs, including heroin.

Peter Peshek, an assistant attorney general with the state justice department, also was in Milwaukee on business. However, he refused to comment on the heroin investigation.

Mitchell said the investigation is being directed by federal officers and has resulted in several indictments by the grand jury, which has convened for about one or two weeks per month.

Hou-Seye out to unseat Lucey

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Edmond Hou-Seye says he and Robert A. Zimmermann plan to jump back into the political arena next year—this time in an attempt to unseat Gov. Patrick J. Lucey.

Zimmermann, an independent businessman from Sheboygan, will run against Lucey in the September, 1974, primary, Hou-Seye said.

Zimmerman was not available for comment.

In the 1970 general election, Zimmermann, 50, polled nearly 500,000 votes in an unsuccessful challenge to longtime Secretary of State Robert C. Zimmerman. Confusion over their similar names was an apparent factor in the vote.

Although Hou-Seye is head of Wisconsin's American Party, he said Zimmermann would run as a Democrat in the primary.

Outside aid important in local levy

Under a state formula limiting local tax levy increases, Outagamie County could increase its levy for next year $366,418 over the current levy.

However, based on early budget estimates by County Executive Alvin Woehler, the county tax levy could drop by as much as $1 million because of state and federal financing of programs currently under county control.

The permissible levy increase is arrived at, Woehler said, using a formula involving the current budget, state and county population estimates and a variety of levy calculations.

For purposes of arriving at the $366,418, a current tax levy figure of $3,721,036 was used. The actual levy for this year was $5,638,537.

However, from that figure the state subtracted various state special charges to the county which amounted to $323,171. Next, $845,928 in social services costs which will be absorbed by the state and federal governments next year were taken off. Also deducted were county debt costs of $748,400.

The new levy figure of $3,721,036 was then multiplied by a "state growth factor" of 1.095 to arrive at an allowable increase of $353,498. An additional $12,920 was tacked on to compensate for the county having a higher population growth rate than the state average.

Lisa finishes in top 35 in derby

Appleton's Lisa Herrmann, the area's entry in the 36th annual All-American Soap Box Derby Saturday in Akron, Ohio, finished among the top 35 drivers in a field of 139.

Twelve-year-old Lisa, who traveled to Akron last Wednesday sponsored by the Appleton Jaycees, spent four days at Derbytown, a YMCA camp near Akron, preparing for the race.

Question safety at J and UU

A fatal traffic accident at Outagamie County Trunks J and UU has prompted a complaint to the sheriff's department from a rural Kaukauna man who believes the intersection is unsafe.

Jeffrey A. Krueger, 17, route 3, Appleton, was killed about 6:20 p.m. Aug. 6 when his car, eastbound on UU, went through a stop sign and collided with a car northbound on J which was not required to stop at the intersection.

Eugene VanderHeiden, route 2, Kaukauna, wrote the sheriff's department a couple days after the accident stating that he was involved in two near crashes, in 1970 and 1972, at the same intersection. Each time, VanderHeiden wrote, cars eastbound on UU failed to heed the stop sign.

He said he had notified the sheriff's department after each of the two near-accidents.

VanderHeiden had asked that the county install a better notice of an upcoming stop sign for traffic approaching County Trunk J. In the alternative, he believed a flashing red light should be put on the stop signs.

There is a school converted to a house at the corner. That, combined with a slight hill on UU just west of J makes it difficult to see the stop sign, VanderHeiden complained. The problem is compounded for motorists not familiar with the intersection, he added.

VanderHeiden sent a copy of the letter to The Post-Crescent which sent a reporter and a photographer to the intersection north of Kaukauna last week.

Both J and UU appear to be good quality, blacktop roads in the area of the intersection. Except for the small rise about a quarter mile west of J, both roads are level and straight.

Traffic from both east and west on UU are required to stop at J. There are prominent, unobstructed stop ahead signs .3 mile east and west of J on UU and there are yellow, no passing lines on both roads before the crossing.

Traffic on J is free flowing. There are UU junction signs .3 miles north and south of the crossing on J.

Speed limit for both roads is 65 miles per hour. There are no obstructions around the two stop signs.

There are, however, several blind spots that could hamper the visibility of motorists eastbound on UU and northbound on J.

The converted schoolhouse is about 40 feet from where the two roads meet, in the southwest corner. It is in violation of setback requirements in the county's zoning ordinance, but the building was there before the ordinance was adopted.

Frank Charlesworth, county coordinator of public services, said that while the building cannot be removed, neither could major structural changes be made and a new building could not be erected in its place without being in violation of the code.

The old schoolhouse is as much an obstacle to traffic on J as to traffic on UU.

Lesser visibility obstructions are presented by a large grouping of buildings including a barn, a shed and a house along J, just south of UU. There

Langedyke complex designing under way

A firm of Appleton architects has been chosen and given initial instructions for designing a multiple use building including showers and concession stand for the Langedyke Park baseball complex.

Parks and recreation commissioners informally approved the selection of Sauter, Seaborne, Painter & Duszak Architects, Ltd., by telephone last week after the commission was unable to assemble enough members for a quorum for Tuesday's regularly scheduled meeting, according to John Olson, chairman.

Thursday, Recreation Supervisor Lloyd Koehnke, City Planner Jack Hetu and architect Robert Duszak met to discuss initial instructions to the architect in making preliminary drawings.

According to Hetu and Koehnke they are seeking a building that can be used year-round. A May 1, 1974, target date has been set for completion.

The city last week issued bonds including the $210,000 budgeted for the project.

Koehnke said details will be determined in part by cost and what the architect is able to fit into the available space and budget.

One possibility, according to Hetu, is an octagonal building two stories high.

According to Koehnke efforts will be made to include the following facilities in the ground-level:

—Two locker rooms large enough for 24 players each, with two accompanying shower rooms with 20 stalls each, drying rooms and toilets adjoining each shower-locker area, an officials' room with shower and toilets, and office with toilet facilities, storage areas, at least two concession stands, public men's and women's restrooms and a utility room.

On the second level Koehnke proposes including meeting rooms and observation decks for the news media and others to view all four baseball diamonds.

A 94-car parking lot would be part of the project.

Koehnke said it is hoped the building could be used in winter as a warming shelter and concession stand if skating or hockey rinks are developed at the site.

Hetu said the design is based on a concept developed some 20 years ago for the Chicago White Sox baseball team as a training facility.

The architect is expected to produce more than one set of preliminary sketches. Hetu, Koehnke and Olson have been delegated to serve as the building committee, with the full commission to approve plans at key points in the project.

Giant banana split

All good things that come to a good end should be celebrated. That was the case for the vacation Bible school, conducted last week by the Emmanuel Baptist Church of Appleton, which ended its week's run with an ice cream social on the grounds of its tent city on E. John Street. A giant banana split to feed 170 children who hungrily gather around the table, above, is made from 13 gallons of ice cream. The chefs are the 22 youths who came from Brownsburg, Ind., to conduct the week's event. Below, Risa Moore scoops in her share of the split. (Post-Crescent photos)

Trooper stuck at ?????

STOCKBRIDGE — Calumet County Sheriff's Department personnel were considering "getting out the bloodhounds" Sunday night, according to a police radio monitor, as they looked for a State Patrol trooper who became stuck in the mud in a road construction project during a high-speed chase near here.

Lt. Jerome Klug of the State Patrol District 3 headquarters in Fond du Lac said today that Trooper Gail R. Minks, 621 Maple St., Neenah, was pursuing a motorcycle about 9:30 p.m. on State 55 and on town roads near here when he ended up stranded and apparently lost on a back road.

Klug said Minks reported the incident started when a motorcycle, exceeding the speed limit, passed him.

The trooper used his red lights and siren but the motorcycle would not stop. The chase led north on 55 until the cyclist made a U turn on the highway, headed south and made a left turn onto Moore Road, a graveled town road a mile north of here. Minks clocked the motorcycle at between 70 and 80 miles per hour on the gravel road.

The cyclist reportedly ran a stop sign at a blacktopped crossroad and continued east on Moore Road. He then made a right turn onto a gravel road marked "closed." Minks followed but became mired in the mud. The motorcyclist managed to get traction out of the bog after two false starts and escaped.

However, Minks could not move his unmarked patrol car. Klug said Minks reported at 10:02 p.m. that he was having trouble getting out of a construction zone. He gave a description of the route he had taken and four sheriff's department personnel were sent to locate him and try to get him out of the mud.

But in his route description, Minks said he was east of State 57. He believed the blacktopped road he had crossed was the state highway. Actually, it was a town road called Long Road, a considerable distance west of 57. This mixup hampered officials in locating the trooper.

While county forces were looking for Minks east of 57, the trooper managed to get out of his car and walked about a quarter of a mile to a crossroad that read Vans Road. He radioed the information to officials who managed to zero in on him around 11:30 p.m.

A Calumet County officer found Minks but also became stuck.

Minks finally was retrieved from the mud, the Calumet County patrolman was freed and the search ended.

Sheriffs call for laws to curb rustling

PRAIRIE DU CHIEN, Wis. (AP) — Legislation is needed to curb livestock rustling which is increasing as the cost of meat is rising and more people are moving away from rural areas, the president of the Wisconsin Sheriffs and Deputy Sheriffs Association says.

Crawford County Sheriff Ray Childs said sheriff's departments do not now have adequate means of coping with the problem.

A law should be passed, he said, which would require livestock identification papers and allow authorities to stop livestock trucks on the road and check the papers.

Childs said his organization also favors a statewide branding registration system in place of the county system which now exists and results in duplication of brands within the state.

The sheriff said he had a difficult time proving his case against a suspect he traced through three states because he only had the owner's description to identify the cattle.

"I think that livestock theft is increasing generally all over the state," he said. "But in the hilly areas where there is wilder country and vacant farms, there is a lot of this taking place, especially where people don't see their cattle every day."

The Crawford County sheriff said many livestock reported stolen turned up later wandering beyond their fence lines, and he recommended that farmers keep better track of them.

Childs also urged farmers to report any suspicious vehicles in their areas. He said he believed rustling was being done by individual operators rather than an organization.

Reports of rustlers using helicopters are mostly fantasy, he said, noting it would be expensive to use the aircraft and dangerous to operate them at night over unfamiliar terrain.

"It would be pretty difficult to have an organization in this business on a regular basis," he said. "Where would they take them?"

Dangerous intersection?

also is a scattering of big trees in the area of the buildings.

The intermittent blind spots could hamper visibility of northbound and eastbound motorists for about a quarter of a mile from the crossing.

A woman living in the converted schoolhouse said it is not uncommon for vehicles, especially trucks, to go through the stop sign while eastbound on UU. She doesn't know if drivers ignore the stop sign or do not see it.

She also told a reporter that vehicles often travel too fast on J, particularly those southbound.

Sgt. Stanley Arnold, Outagamie County's highway safety coordinator, received VanderHeiden's letter. He said he has been to the intersection twice since the fatal accident and added that the issue will be discussed at the Sept. 11 meeting of the county traffic safety commission.

FVTI offers food service course

A food services program for a variety of needs, both in the home and in restaurants, will be offered this fall by the Fox Valley Technical Institute.

Students will be able to enroll in short-term, continuing or degree programs.

Those completing the the latter will receive an associate degree, according to Robert Martin, supervisor of the program.

The restaurant and hotel cookery curriculum is individualized and will allow students to study at their own speed, progressing from one area to another after mastering a skill.

The students' practical food preparation experience will be put to use in the cafeteria and snack bar this fall, Martin said. Martin's department will be responsible for operating the snack bar, the hot lunch program and preparing and serving catered meals on campus.

The student stations will be in the commons on campus. FVTI is spending about $200,000 to equip the new program. Gas ranges, electric broilers, ovens, baking equipment, steam kettles, pressure cookers, ranges, and other needed items are currently being purchased through bids.

In addition to the students, the food services program will be staffed by the department's full and part-time employes and students involved in the school's work study program.

About 30 students will be accepted for the fall term, Martin said.

Martin said the program encompasses everything from the modern, short order food preparation to classical cookery. It covers everything from catering to quantity feeding in institutions.

An area which might be of interest to anyone who likes food, explained the supervisor, is hospitality foods.

Included in the lessons are basic instructions in laboratory experience in cooking, baking, equipment use, food handling, purchasing, sanitation and safety, terminology, menu construction and nutrition, portion control, presentation of food and food service sysfems.

The fall program has been planned as part of the FVTI curriculum for a number of years but has been postponed several times because of cost and because the board had required proof of need.

This year the advisory committee members, consisting of people from the restaurant and food industry, appeared before the board with statistics to prove there was a need for trained people in the field

According to Martin, food service is the third largest industry in the U.S. The total industry, including the retail and institutional areas, employs almost four million people.

"The industry needs 250,000 new people every year to take care of the normal attrition rate. About 75,000 of these are due to the expansion of the industry alone," Martin said.

State use of compulsory arbitration may expand

Post-Crescent Madison bureau

MADISON —Compulsory arbitration of labor disputes in local government, an idea resented or dreaded by most local government administrations, will probably be more widely used in the future.

That is the judgment of a new labor relations advisory agency representing Wisconsin municipalities and counties and incorporated as the Wisconsin Institute of Municipal and County Employers, Inc.

The institute, in a report here, said the method is already being heavily used in the handling of disputes between numicipalities as employers and local police and fire employe organizations.

Although such compulsary arbitration was provided by state law in such disputes only about 15 months ago, already 48 petitions for the use of the device have been filed. Most were filed by police or deputy sheriffs. The legislature recently extended the mandatory arbitration system for police and fire services, and now has a bill before it that would extend the system to municipal employe organizations generally.

Municipal employer organizations have anxiously resisted such legislation, protesting that it has the result of turning over basic expenditure and taxing decisions to outside arbitrators who have no immediate accountability to the residents of a community who are liable in tax rises for the cost of his decisions.

The institute explains that the basic rule in compulsory arbitration provides for the independent settlement by an outside arbitrator of the "last offer" of either the employer or the employe group in a dispute.

Generally, municipal employers have opposed the "wide open" form of arbitration, so-called, because it permits the outside officer to make any decision he sees fit, if both parties agree to the use of the method, and may depart from the "last offer" of both parties.

Runaways . . .

the best thing.

Authorities may decide to refer the case to the juvenile court, and then Charles Rucker, juvenile intake worker, enters the picture.

Rucker said that ideally, local runaways and their parents should be provided counseling immediately, but this often isn't possible. Private counseling and welfare department counseling can be used.

If the pickup is late at night, Rucker may not get involved until the next day, and then the youth may have had to spend a night in jail because there is no other place to stay. Rucker said he arranged temporary foster homes when possible.

This isn't always workable, either, he said, adding what is needed is some type of half-way house for runaways.

The juvenile court may become involved in court room activity on runaways if they aren't local and must be sent back home, or if circumstances, such as a criminal offense, justify additional action.

Weaver said the city drop-in center and the school system also cooperate in handling the runaway problem. Often, runaways will end up at the center.

The city welfare department also occasionally provides financial assistance in runaway cases, but this is less than 1 per cent of its caseload.

Indian congress to back Menominees' reservation effort

KESHENA, Wis. (AP) — Restoring the Menominee Indians to federal reservation status will be the theme of the National Congress of American Indians convention this fall, the group's executive director said Sunday.

Charles Trimble told the Determination of Rights and Unity of Menominee Stockholders (DRUMS) organization that the proposal had a broad base of support which crossed all political lines. His group will meet Oct. 28-Nov. 2 in Tulsa, Okla.

The Menominees lost their reservation status in 1961 and, along with it, their eligibility for much special federal assistance.

The result has been described as an economic disaster for the Wisconsin Indian tribe, and a bill has been introduced in Congress to restore the reservation status and special assistance.

Vine Deloria Jr., a nationally known Indian author, told DRUMS members Saturday that the measure would initiate a new era of Indian affairs.

"It means the federal government is finally recognizing its responsibilities and obligations to Indians," he said.

Ralph Reiter of Keshena, a University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh student, was elected Saturday to succeed Lloyd Powless as president of DRUMS.

DRUMS was organized four years ago to oppose the sale of Menominee land to non-Menominees for the Legend Lake recreation project. Menominee Enterprise, Inc., which has held and managed all tribal assets since the 1961 termination, has also favored restoration.

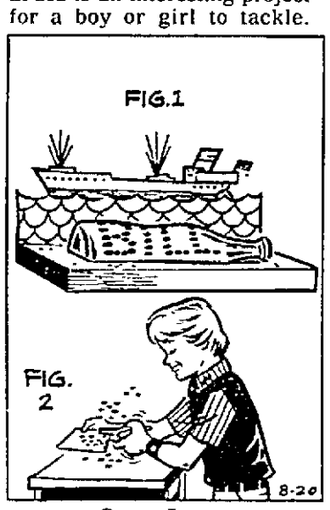
Bottle required for name plaque

BY CAPPY DICK

A name plaque for your desk in the form of a bottle set afloat at sea is an interesting project for a boy or girl to tackle.



Ocean Scene

To make such a plaque, the first step is to rescue a soft drink bottle from the discard, rinse it clean and dry it.

Next, use your paper punch to punch out a supply of little paper discs (Figure 2) to use in spelling your name on the bottle. Glue the discs in place as shown in Figure 1. If the bottle is made of clear, uncolored glass, use discs punched from a dark-colored paper. If the bottle is tinted, use discs cut from white paper or any light color that will show up nicely against the color of the glass.

Prepare the cardboard background, drawing the freighter as part of it. Color the background and the ship with your paints or crayons. Glue the background to the plastic foam, completing the project. Tomorrow: how to make a special tick-tack-toe pencil

Three against one

Offense perks up

Bay QB decision near

By LEE REMMEL
Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY —It may not seem quite fair, considering he is only one of 22 starters, but the quarterback is the most important man on any pro football team.

All other things being relatively equal, a team will go as far as the quarterback will take it.

Which brings us to the crux of the Packers' current situation, quite clearly, if consistency can be found at this key position, there is undisputed Super Bowl potential in the cast that Dan Devine has assembled.

Devine himself pinpointed the importance of both certainty and continuity at quarterback following Saturday night's 33-14 conquest of the Houston Oilers in Milwaukee County Stadium.

In response to the inevitable question, prompted by the fact that imcumbent Scott Hunter and sophomore Jerry Tagge have been sharing the duty equally to date in the pre-season, be assured that a decision between the pair will be made soon —within a week, at most.

Devine, committed to the proposition that there must be a No. 1 quarterback, prefaced that assurance by announcing, "I can't answer that tonight, I want to look at the film and do some thinking first. But I'm going to make a decision pretty darned soon. If I don't make it next week, it will be made early following our Kansas City game (upcoming Sunday night). We have to be cut down to 49 by the following afternoon."

As might be expected, the Packer coach declined to make an on-the-spot evaluation of the Hunter-Tagge performances, although he noted, "It was so long ago, it seems, but you have to be pleased with those two first-quarter scores we made (with Hunter at quarterback)."

Later asked to specifically assess Tagge's efforts, Devine replied, "I'll probably reserve my comments on that (presumably until after visiting the projection room)."

It would be fair to say, however, that neither of the principals made the ultimate decision any easier. Overall, both were more effective than in their first dual appearances against the Bears and Bills, respectively.

Hunter, who completed five of 11 passes for 107 yards, escorted the Packers to 20 of those 33 points during his first half stint. He produced 14 of them in the first 6½ minutes, directing a 4-play, 83-yard drive climaxed by a 46-yard collaboration with wide receiver Jon Staggers, then taking advantage of a 30-yard Houston punt to take the Packers in from 48 yards with six plays. That one was finished off by John Brockington's five-yard sweep right.

Tagge, 6-for-15 for 47 yards, guided a pair of successful field goal drives in the third quarter and embellished his tour of duty with a seven-yard option maneuver for the Packers' third and last touchdown, capping a 53-yard drive.

Characteristically, Hunter was largely positive in appraising his and the offense's performance, Tagge, in contrast, was apologetic about what had appeared to be the highlight of his evening.

"It felt good getting that first touchdown off a big play like that," Scott said, "Things like that are what make an offense great. Jon catches an ordinary pass that usually gets you 12 yards and turns it into a touchdown. That's what gets the ball rolling.

"The second touchdown was like the old Green Bay style. I'll take 'em any way but I like it when you can chew up the clock like that."

Turning to self-analysis upon request, Hunter reported, "I was a little disappointed in one play. A penalty nullified the interception (by Willie Alexander) in the second quarter, but it was a poor play on my part. I'm going to have to eliminate those kind.

"Overall, the protection was excellent and the guys were catching the ball. If you have that, you're going to have a good passing attack."

Tagge, nursing a headache traceable to a pair of licks from the Oilers' huge front four, still was pondering his awkward moment in a remote corner of the dressing room.

"I'm really embarrassed," he announced. "I thought I was on the two-yard-line on that option for the touchdown, but they tell me I was on the seven.

"When I crossed the five, I thought I was in the end zone. I kind of stopped. It was a good thing I didn't throw the ball in the air or something. Coach Devine asked me when I came off the field what yard-line I was on. I told him I thought I was on the two.

"He chewed me out for not running it out. He said you should always run right through the end zone to make sure."

Pausing to assess the evening as a whole, Tagge observed, "we had some big plays and we had some sloppy ones. Sometimes we looked great and sometimes we didn't look like the same ball club."

Devine may have been thinking along the same lines when he said, "I didn't see anybody I was all that happy with. I

Brewers lose

Del blames himself

OAKLAND (AP) —The Milwaukee Brewers, who had used ninth inning heroics to win several games on their recent homestand, failed to come through Sunday and lost 6-4 to the Oakland A's.

Sal Bando's ninth inning homer for the A's made the Brewers 0-3 on their current road trip, which will take them to Anaheim, Calif., and a threegame series with the California Angels beginning Tuesday night.

Milwaukee first had a chance to break the 4-4 tie in the eighth when singles by Don Money and Darrell Porter and a sacrifice put runners on first and third. But John Briggs grounded out to end the inning.

Ollie Brown then opened the ninth with a single, pinch runner Bob Heise reached second on a sacrifice and a single by Pedro Garcia put men on first and third again. But pinch hitter Joe Lahoud, after working up to a 3 and 2 count, grounded into a double play.

"I made a mistake," Brewer Manager Del Crandall said in explaining why Garcia was not running on the pitch. "The man should have been going. In that case, a man stays or he runs. I had him stay. I made a mistake —pure and simple."

The game dropped Milwaukee 9½ games behind Baltimore in the American League East, but put Oakland three games ahead of Kansas City in the West.

"We're four games ahead in the loss column," A's Manager Dick Williams said. "But this thing isn't over yet. You can see how quick things can turn around by what has happened in the last week."

The A's have come from two games back to three games ahead of the slumping Royals during their winning streak.

Bando's homer brought a sudden end to Sunday's game. It was his 20th of the season and first in almost three weeks.

"I was getting discouraged because I wasn't helping the team. There was too much pressure on Reggie Jackson and Deron Johnson because I wasn't driving in runs," Bando said.

Deron Johnson accounted for the other four Oakland runs with a grand slam homer in the first inning. He now has driven in 73 runs and has 18 homers for the year.

"That's what I'm paid to do," Johnson said of his homer.

Horacio Pina, 6-3, was the winner although he pitched to only one batter. He got a double play ball with two runners on base in the ninth inning.

Catfish Hunter pitched the first five innings for Oakland, his first appeaeance since he suffered a broken thumb in the All-Star game almost a month ago.

"My thumb didn't hurt at all," Hunter said. "I got a little tired but I'll be ready to go nine innings next time."

Garcia hit a two-run homer off Hunter in the third inning and singles by Tim Johnson and Money sent Hunter to the showers in the sixth inning.

Relief pitcher Darold Knowles gave up a two-run double to George Scott that tied the score.

That's the way it stayed until Bill North singled leading off the ninth inning, was sacrificed to second and then romped home on Bando's homer.

Bando's smash came off the fifth Brewer pitcher of the game, Skip Lockwood, who was a rival of his for th A's third base job in 1965 befor switching to pitching.

Lockwood stifled an Oakland scorin opportunity in the seventh after Be Campaneris singled and stole secon and Johnson was walked intentionall Gene Tenace grounded to Lockwood t end the inning. The Brewer pitcher the didn't allow a hit until North's single i ninth.

Wood suffers 18th setback

By The Associated Press

Remember this early season tongue twister:

How many wins can a Wilbur Wood win if a Wilbur Wood continues to win?

Well, forget it, cause Wilbur Wood's season has taken a twist for the worse.

Wood, the Chicago White Sox knuckleballer whose early season victory count made experts wonder if he'd win 30 games, suffered his 18th defeat to go with 20 victories Sunday.

He may soon be seeing 20-20.

The Baltimore Orioles knocked Wood out of the game in the second inning and went on to win their seventh straight game, 8-2.

Waterloo and Foxes continue their streaks

WATERLOO, Iowa—Solo home runs in the third inning by Sheldon Mallory and Dennis Smith helped Waterloo's Royals chalk up their 12th straight Midwest League victory, a 4-2 verdict over Appleton's Foxes here Sunday.

Appleton will open a 2-game series at Cedar Rapids tonight.

The Foxes sliced Waterloo's lead to 2-1 in the fourth. A single by Manny Estrada, a walk and an error enabled them to load the bases. Estrada scored on an infield grounder.

Waterloo added a run in the bottom of the fourth when Joe Zdeb singled and Mike Roberts rapped a 2-bagger.

Walks to Estrada and Larry Foster and Mike Squires' single led to the Foxes final run in the ninth.

Losing pitcher Jeff Holly (9-8) t went the distance. He allowed nine hits; fanned seven and walked two. Jeff Gressick, the winning hurler, limited Appleton to a pair of hits. Reliever George Throop gave up one hit.

Bucs' Rooker zips Giants

BY KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Tony Bartirome?

Well, yes, even though the Pirate trainer never threw a pitch, he was in Sunday's game all the way with Rooker.

Bartirome provided needed relief for agonizing back pains and Rooker, who hadn't slept much the night before, gave the San Francisco Giants another dose of medicine in the 5-0 Pirate victory.

Manny Sanguillen and Richie Hebner drove in two runs apiece to back Rooker's fine pitching. The Pirate southpaw also contributed to a 13-hit attack with three singles in three at-bats.

The Pirates' victory kept them two games behind the St. Louis Cardinals in the National League East race. The Cardinals defeated the San Diego Padres 1-0.

In the other National League games, the Los Angeles Dodgers trimmed the Chicago Cubs 2-1; the New York Mets turned back the Cincinnati Reds 2-1; the Montreal Expos beat the Atlanta Braves 3-1 and the Philadelphia Phillies whipped the Houston Astros 5-3.

Cardinals 1, Padres 0

Bake McBride scored on a wild throw in the first inning and Alan Foster equaled his career high of victories in a season with 10 in the Cardinals' 1-0 triumph over the Padres.

Dodgers 2, Cubs 1

Joe Ferguson blasted a two-out, two-run homer to spoil a strong pitching performance by Rick Reuschel in Los Angeles' 2-1 success over Chicago.

Until the ninth, Reuschel had given the Dodgers just two singles—both in the eighth inning. Reuschel struck out 12 Dodgers and allowed but four hits overall.

Dodger starter Tommy John was victimized by Ron Santo's homer in the fifth for the Cubs' only score. It appeared to be enough as Reuschel headed into the ninth. But Bill Buckner singled with one out and one out later, rode home on Ferguson's blast into the left field seats, his 18th homer of the year.

Mets 2, Reds 1

Bud Harrelson doubled home the winning run in the eighth inning to boost the Mets to a 2-1 decision over the Reds.

Expos 3, Braves 1

Pepe Mangual hit a home run to help Montreal beat Atlanta 31. After Mangual's blast off Phil Niekro gave the Expos a 10 lead in the second inning, the Expos scored their winning run in the fifth when Tim Foli doubled, moved to third on an infield out and scored on catcher Paul Casanova's passed ball.

Phillies 5, Astros 3

Wadkins wins crown despite double bogey

BY BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) —Little Lanny Wadkins headed for Cary, N.C., today with his sights set on winning his way into the Match Play golf championship and a shot at Jack Nicklaus.

"I'd like to get hold of big Jack," the 23-year-old tour sophomore said Sunday following his triumph in the USI Classic, Wadkins second victory of the season.

Then he considered the statement, grinned ruefully and backed off a little.

"But then, I guess big Jack would like to get hold of me, too," he said.

Wadkins had to survive a double bogey five in the run down the stretch to annex the $40,000 first prize and push his winnings to a whopping $168,914, fourth on the list, this year.

It was a record for a second-year player. He set the rookie record last season with $116,000, and now has more than $300,000 in less than two full years on the tour.

Wadkins, a stocky, 5-foot-8, 160-pounder, came from three strokes off the pace with a final 69 before the massive gallery of 44,000 and won by two strokes with a 279 total. His winnings now are $174,911. Rookie Tom Jenkins and Rik Massengale, the third-round leader, tied for second at 281. Elder closed with a 69. Jenkins had a 73 and was in title-contention until he bogeyed the 17th hole. Massengale needed only a birdie on the par five final hole to force a playoff, but three-putted for a bogey and had a 74.

Jim Weichers was tied at 282 with Bobby Mitchell.

The group at 283 included Bert Yancey, Roy Pace and Miller Barber. Nicklaus, Tom Weiskopf and Arnold Palmer did not compete. Australian Bruce Crampton collected $2,510 after a 286 total and retained his leading money-winning spot with a $273,351 total.

Lee Trevino was only three strokes off the lead when the final round started, but blew to a triple bogey seven on the second hole of the 7,212-yard Pleasant Valley Country Club course and finished with a 76 for 286.

Shiocton tops Hofa Park, 7-2

SHIOCTON—Mark Johnson hurled a 5-hitter and struck out 11 batters in leading Shiocton to a 7-2 Dairyland Baseball League victory over Hofa Park in a playoff game here Sunday.

Shiocton will now meet the winner of the Bonduel-Nichols game which was rained out Sunday and will be re scheduled.

Johnson walked only two batters and his mates backed him with a 8-hit attack that included a solo home run by Rick Puffe.

18 racing fans hurt, as bleacher collapses

SAUK RAPIDS, Minn. (AP) — Eighteen people were injured Sunday night when a bleacher collapsed at the Golden Spike Raceway, where a stock car race was about to begin.

A spokesman at St. Cloud Hospital said four of the injured were hospitalized, sustaining fractures or abrasions. They were listed in good condition. The other 14 were treated and released.

'Brock,' Lane trade compliments

Post Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — It could have been Damon and Pythias —or Taylor and Hornung.

But it was Brockington and Lane, in the second season of partnership which promises to be productive for years to come. They were exchanging heartfelt compliments in the Packers' steamy County Stadium dressing room Saturday night following a 33-14 triumph over Houston.

"I almost walked in on that touchdown," Brockington chortled. "Mac just creamed that dude (Oiler defender John Charles) blew him out of there. It was no problem walking in. Mac's great."

It, MacArthur announced, had been a pleasure. "A man like this you don't mind doing a job for," he said. "He won't lay down on you."

Brockington was somewhat remorseful, however, over the matter of reciprocity.

"I missed a block on one of Mac's plays on the outside," he said. "That makes me feel doubly worse because he's such a great blocker. He makes me work harder on my blocking because of that —because he's so great at it."

Pleased over the Packers' improved point production (the 33 represented 10 more than they collected in their first two pre-season games combined), John reminded, "I told you we'd get better. The offense always comes slow in any football situation.

Houston big team

"I'll tell you another thing. We're not goning to meet a much bigger team then that Houston outfit. They're big and strong, man."

Lane meanwhile, was surprised by his own output. "I didn't think I'd run the ball that well to get 64 yards," he said. "In fact, I didn't think I was running the ball well at all."

Both he and his running mate had kind words for the performance of new comer Don Highsmith, who had relieved Lane at left halfback and was the game's leading ground-gainer with 73 yards in 17 carries.

The former Raider might prove valuable to spell him in the future, it was subsequently suggested.

"That's true," Mac said, "but once that season starts, I don't want to be spelled. I want to play."

Puffing luxuriously on an ever-present cigar, he beamed, "I figure I've got two or three good years left, and I'm enjoying it."

Turning to Brockington, five years his junior, he justly asserts, "I'm going to play as long as you do, man. They're going to have to run me out of the league."

Sandra Palmer makes good use of Jane's advice

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) —Jane Blalock said she made two mistakes that gave Sandra Palmer the title and $4,500 first place money in the $30,000 St. Paul Ladies Open Golf Tournament.

Miss Palmer took the championship Sunday with a 54-hole total of 10-under par 70-68-71—209, edging Miss Blalock's 69-71-70—210 and leading money winner Judy Rankin's 71-69-70—210.

Miss Blalock said a three-putt 11th green and a short drive on the 220-yard par three, 15th were mistakes that led to bogeys and knocked her out of a chance for the title.

The third mistake could have been helpful advice that Miss Blalock gave to Miss Palmer during the tournament at the par 73, 6,402-yard Keller Golf Course.

"I didn't hit the ball well all week," said Miss Palmer. "Jane helped me before every round. She talked to me about addressing the ball properly...she gave me some things to work on."

Miss Palmer took a two-stroke lead over Miss Blalock and Mrs. Rankin into the final 18 holes, but quickly fell behind when Jane birdied her first three holes.

By the end of the first nine holes, Miss Blalock had added two birdies for a sensational five-under-par 32.

"That's the finest nine holes I've ever played," said Miss Blalock. "But my momentum was thrown off with the three putts on 11. I was struggling from there and felt I had to get birdies to win."

Miss Palmer birdied the 11th hole, tying for the lead and parred the 15th to go ahead for good.

"When Jane started out with those birdies I thought it was going to be a long day," she said. "It takes quite a person to give me the advice she did. When we started playing, though, I didn't want her to win. She made a couple of mistakes and I took advantage of them."

Tour rookie Roberta Albers and Gail Derenberg tied for fourth place at 213. Grouped at 216 were Laura Baugh, Sandra Spuzich and Carol Mann.

Among the five players at even par 219 was Kathy Whitworth, the LPGA's all-time money winner and second in earnings this year. She won $340 Sunday.

ABC correspondent 'released by Mafia'

ROME (AP) —American television correspondent Jack Begon walked into a Rome clinic today four weeks after mysteriously disappearing. Police said he told them he had been kidnaped by the Mafia.

The Mafia transported him to the United States, but then released him, police quoted Begon as saying.

"I talked them into letting me free after I promised I would no longer investigate Mafia affairs," a police officer said Begon reported.

Begon turned up at the clinic on Rome"s Janiculum Hill in the early morning and asked for a through medical check-up. He was assigned a room and went to bed.

Scali told newsmen Begon repeated his statement that he had been kidnaped and taken to the United States by the Mafia, but said that he had managed to escape.

Scali said that the first word from Begon had come in a telephone call to his wife last Thursday night. He told his wife he was safe, but could not say where he was telephoning from or when he would return home.

He actually returned Sunday night, Scali said.

"He is tired. He needs a lot of rest," said Dr. Giulio Birotta.

The clinic refused to let newsmen interview Begon, a correspondent-producer for the American Broadcasting Co.

Begon was accompanied to the clinic by his wife. An attendant said both appeared to be "a bit nervous."

Investigating officials spent several hours at the hospital questioning Begon.

The 62-year-old newsman vanished on July 22 after telling his wife that he was going to interview Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor. The Burtons were then in their brief period of reconciliation prior to the announcement that they would divorce, but Begon was not seen near the villa of producer Carlo Ponti, where they were staying.

Instead his office was found in disarray, with a pair of eyeglasses shattered on the floor. His car was found parked at Rome's Fiumicino Airport and he had bought a plane ticket for Palermo, Sicily, to work on a documentary program about the Mafia and its financial secrets. The police said the plane ticket had been used, but they could not determine whether Begon used it.

Begon disappeared two weeks after J. Paul Getty III, the 16year-old grandson of the American oil billionaire, disappeared in Rome. His mother, who lives in Rome, says he was kidnaped and she has had a number of communication from the kidnapers, including a demand for $17 million in ransom. The boy's grandfather has refused to pay any ransom, and his mother reportedly has offered $500,000. But police investigators say they are still not sure Getty, a ninth-grade dropout dubbed the "golden hippy" by the local press, was really kidnaped.

Site of grave

Oneida County Sheriff Jack D. Phillips examines the shallow grave in a wooded area 10 miles south of Rhinelander where a body identified as that of Anthony Raymond was found on Sunday. Raymond was a Hillside, Ill., policeman who disappeared after stopping a car for a traffic violation in October, 1972. (AP Wirephoto)

Mexico threatened by Brenda

MIAMI (AP) —Tropical Storm Brenda moved into the Gulf of Campeche today where it was expected to gain hurricane strength as it headed west towards Mexico.

The National Hurricane Center said the greatest threat from Brenda appeared to be along coastal sections of Mexico between Tampico and Veracruz.

At 6 a.m., EDT today Brenda was centered at latitude 20.7, north and longitude 91.3 west, or about 120 miles west of Merida on the Yucatan Peninsula. The storm was moving slightly south of due west at 10 miles per hour.

Forecasters said Brenda was packing winds of 60 miles an hour, 14 miles below minimum hurricane strength.

Forecaster Neil Frank said Brenda would probably acquire hurricane force during the day. He said the storm's "ultimate landfall is uncertain, although the greatest threat appears to be the coastal sections of Mexico between Tampico and Veracruz Tuesday."

Man killed by police

MILWAUKEE, Wis, (AP) — A 22-year-old Milwaukee man was shot and killed early today after he held two children at knifepoint and threatened to kill them, police said.

A police spokesman said officers stopped the man near a northwest side housing project and were taking him into custody on a charge of drunkenness when he fled.

The spokesman said the man, who was not immediately identified, ran to a nearby apartment where he had been babysitting for six children.

The man grabbed two of the children, aged 9 and 6, in one arm, and held a butcher knife in his other hand, police said. They said he threatened to kill the children.

Police said they ordered the man to drop the knife, and when he did not, they fired. He was killed instantly, officials said.

Murray M. Chotiner, an associate of Nixon.

Mrs. Goldberg

"They were looking for really dirty stuff," she said. "Who was sleeping with whom, what the Secret Service men were doing with the stewardesses, who was smoking pot on the plane—that sort of thing."

However, she told station WINS: "I don't think I told them anything that wasn't in the papers the next day. I don't think I was a very good spy."

Mrs. Goldberg said she was carried on the payroll of Chotiner's Washington law firm and thus her name did not appear on the financial reports made public by the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

Body that of officer

RHINELANDER, Wis. (AP) — An investigation continued today into the circumstances surrounding the death of a Hillside, Ill., policeman, whose body was believed to be the one unearthed in an isolated wooded area during the weekend.

Oneida County Dist. Atty. Michael Stroh said the body, which was found in a shallow grave Saturday after a weeklong search, had been tentatively identified as that of Patrolman Anthony Raymond.

Raymond, 25, has been missing since Oct. 1, when he radioed a police dispatcher that he was stopping a suspicious auto on an entrance ramp to the Eisenhower Expressway in the Chicago suburb of Hillside. He was believed to have been abducted moments after an armed robbery at a restaurant near the expressway.

Illinois Bureau of Investigation detectives said Raymond was apparently taken captive, driven to a Wisconsin farm and killed. An informant directed investigators to the 160-acre farm where the body was discovered Saturday.

The body was still clad in a Hillside Police Department uniform and Raymond's police badge was found alongside, authorities said.

Stroh said the Illinois Bureau of Investigation, Cook County sheriff's police, the Wisconsin Department of Justice, Oneida County sheriff's officers and the Oneida County district attorney's office had been involved in the investigation.

Positive identification and determination of cause of death awaited results of an autopsy by the State Crime Laboratory, officials said today.

However, a lab spokesman said that if more extensive tests are needed, results might not be available until later in the week.

Sheriff Jack Phillips said today the investigation would continue for some time.

"There are a lot of things to look for yet," he said. He would not elaborate.

Investigators have continued to comb the northern Wisconsin area where the body was found in an attempt fo find further clues.

time we hit the main road, the flames were roaring over us. By the time we reached the edge of town, less than a mile away, we could see the house going up in flames."

Firefighters in Oregon areas have been hampered by yellowjackets and wasps angered at being driven from their nests by the fires. A Forest Service spokesman said one man had to be evacuated from the firelines to a hospital in Enterprise, Ore., for treatment of yellowjacket stings.

Montana had the largest blaze —actually eight fires burning in a 40,000-acre area of the 7-W ranch near Jordan.

A spokesman for the Bureau of Land Management said the fires had eaten 15,000 acres and continued to burn out of control. He said it was considered the state's most critical fire situation with new blazes cropping up continually.

Bill Lyon, boss of 312 men fighting the blaze, said crews were attempting to hit critical spots with emphasis on protecting ranch buildings and fields.

The U.S. Forest Service and Gov. Thomas L. Judge ordered all Montana federal, state and private forest lands closed to public use.

The fire center's Russell said general cost figures on the fires are not available because "we are too busy moving thousands of men from state to state to figure them out."

Kennedy found guilty, fined in traffic case

NANTUCKET, Mass. (AP) —A judge found Joseph P. Kennedy III guilty today of driving to endanger, fined him $100 and urged him to use his "illustrious name" for better purposes.

Afterwards, the young man's uncle, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said he thought his nephew had received a fair trial and added, "Joe will have to live with the verdict."

Seven persons were hurt Aug. 13 when an open car driven by the son of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., flipped over as it entered a highway from a side road.

Judge C. George Anastos of Nantucket District Court urged Kennedy to "use your illustrious name to do a lot of good, as I know you are able, rather than having to come into court like this."

Kennedy had pleaded innocent to the charge.

A patrolman, William Carlton, testified that he talked to Kennedy after the accident, adding: "During the interrogation, he (Kennedy) said the accident was entirely his fault."

According to witnesses, Kennedy was driving along a seldom-used side road when he pulled onto a main road, barely missing an oncoming car.

Sapra Peterson, a bus driver, said she saw Kennedy's vehicle moments before the accident. "It looked like there were people hanging all over the top of the jeep. Some were standing," she said.

Mrs. Peterson said the vehicle was traveling 35 or 40 miles an hour on the narrow, bumpy road.

The vehicle is a four-wheel drive, open car.

She said that when she came upon the accident she spoke to Kennedy. "He said that he was totally to blame for the accident and that nobody else was to blame," she said.

Another witness, Merrill Lindsay, said he was driving along the main road. "I was confronted with a jeep full of people heading toward me on my side of the road," he said.

Lindsay said he slammed on the brakes, and the Kennedy vehicle "missed me by a hair. As the jeep was passing me, I saw people flying out of it," he said.

before the coup, most of whose leaders are bitter opponents of the regime. But it is not likely since Papadopoulos repeatedly has spoken with contempt of the politicians and has said: "The old political world no longer has a place in Greece's political life."

In addition, the president will appoint 20 of the 200 deputies in parliament.

"The new democracy is for all of us," Papadopoulos said in his speech Sunday. "Differences can exist and are even necessary under the democratic order. But passions and individualism undermine democracy, and self-discipline and superiority must be imposed."

The president's inaugural amnesty applies to all political crimes committed inside Greece since April 21, 1967, the date of the coup. It affects at least 300 persons.

Among those excluded are persons accused of crimes against the government committed outside the country. These presumably include such well-known exiles as actress Melina Mercouri and newspaper publisher Helen Vlachou, who have carried on viciferous campaigns abroad against the regime.

A government official announced today that the amnesty also would apply to the 69 men accused of taking part in the abortive navy rebellion last spring which led Papadopoulos to proclaim the republic and depose King Constantine.

Barron area accident claims four

Four persons died in a Barron County collision and 11 others also died in weekend accidents to send Wisconsin's 1973 traffic death toll to 690 today, compared with 712 one year ago.

Albert Haus, 40, and his wife Barbara, 39, of rural Rice Lake were killed along with Kenneth McDaniel, 20, and his wife Sally, 22, of Rice Lake when their motorcycles were among eight cycles and car involved in a multiple collision Sunday morning three miles east of Barron on U.S. 8. Another couple was hospitalized in serious condition.

The Barron County sheriff's department said the mishap occurred in heavy rain as the group of cyclists was heading to St. Croix Falls for an outing.

James M. Lloyd, 19, of Fond du Lac, was killed Sunday night in a two-car collision at a rural intersection about eight miles east of Fond du Lac, authorities said. He was the driver of one of the cars.

Manitowoc County officials said Ronald Sohm, 23, of Howards Grove, died Sunday night when the car he was driving collided head-on with another on U.S. 141 just south of County Trunk N.

Eugene Carter, 18, of Cobb and Jacob Schmelzer, 19, of Highland died early Sunday when their cars collided on Wisconsin 80 south of Highland in Iowa County.

Donald Anderson, 32, of rural Cambria was killed Saturday night when the car he was in struck a bridge guard rail and plunged into a stream east of Wyocena.

Two-car collisions Saturday resulted in the deaths of Frank Hubatch, 63, of Milwaukee in Marquette County, Frances Loshinski, 65, of Princton in Green Lake County and Andrew Witkowski, 39, of Kaukauna in Outagamie County.

Car-train crashes Saturday killed Ronald Patzer, 43, of rural Nekoosa in Adams County and Steven Bostwick, 18, of Lily in Langland County.

Shirley Larson, 18, of Nekoosa lost her life Friday night in a one-car Juneau County mishap.

Steven Bell, 20, of rural Racine was one of two victims of a southeastern Minnesota accident Saturday. The Highway Patrol said the truck he was driving collided with a car at the intersection of U.S. 14 and an Olmstead County road west of Eyota. The other victim was Mary Kjorstad, 26, of Minneapolis.

Russian gymnasts cop 3 more golds

MOSCOW (AP) —The premier track and field competition ends today at the World University Games in a burst of 15 final events with the American team still seeking its first victory in a flood of Soviet gold medals.

Soviet gymnasts, led by Olympic princess Olga Korbut who has collected a total of five golds including three gold and one bronze Sunday, dominated the fourth day of the Games.

Going into today's competition, the Soviet Union had 36 golds, 15 silver and 17 bronze, compared to a single silver and four bronze for the disappointing United States contingent.

Romania, winner of two golds Sunday, had a total of three golds, five silver and five bronze for second place. Cuba had two golds, two silver and a bronze for third.

Ryszard Skowronek of Poland scored a major upset Sunday in the decathlon, defeating Soviet Olympic gold medalist Nikolai Avilov and Rudolf Zigert of the Soviet Union.

He trailed through eight events but closed strong and won the javelin and 1,500-meter race in Lenin Stadium. Zigert finished second and Avilov third.

The American men's basketball team rolled to its fourth straight victory, crushing France 137-43 for a total of 520 points in four games. The young Americans are pointing toward a collision with the Soviet Union in the final to try and avenge the controversial loss to the Russians at the 1972 Munich Olympics.

Meanwhile, the Soviet Union continued to dominate. The Russians took two more track and field golds—Mikhail Bariban won the triple jump and Leonid Saveliev took the 3,000-meter steeplechase.

The American wrestlers did manage to pick up three bronze medals in Greco-Roman events, by James Sones of the University of Iowa, Mark Davids of Eastern Michigan and Ken Levals of Hiram College.

But the Russians won nine of 10 golds in the wrestling.

Gymnastics was all Miss Korbut and her teammates in the girls competition. Nikolai Andrianov won two more men's gymnastics golds, pushing his total to four for the Games. Vladimir Shukin got two golds, and the only final women's event Miss Korbut didn't win, Lubov Bogdanova stepped in and took the victory.

Americans already were looking ahead to the swimming events where they won 19 of their 22 gold medals at the last University Games in Turin, Italy. Both the U.S. men and women are considered good enough to win many of the swimming events and restore a measure of pride to the U.S. delegation.

In the track and field finals, the U.S. men's 400 and 1,600-meter relay teams may have a shot at gold.

And there are finalists such as Tony Waldrop and Reggie McAfee of the University of North Carolina in the 1,500, and Mark Lutz of Kansas University and Wardel Gilbreath of New Mexico Junior College in the 200.

Smith, Van Dillen win

ALAMO, Calif. (AP) —The Romanians knew when they were beaten against the U.S. Davis Cup doubles team of Stan Smith and Erik van Dillen Sunday.

Cristea Caralului, captain of the Romanian squad, said before the matches began at Round Hill Country Club here that Nastase had the only chance to win on the fast concrete court and that the team "might be able to lose 3-2."

So far, he has been correct. The first three matches were all won in straight sets, with Smith beating Toma Ovici 7-5, 6-1, 6-3, and Nastase handling Marty Riessen 6-2, 6-4, 6-2 in Saturday's play.

Sunday, Smith and Van Dillen teamed to defeat Nastase and Lionel Santeiu in the doubles match 6-2, 7-5, 6-2, giving the U.S. a 2-1 lead. The Americans need only win one of today's two singles matches to win the series.

Riessen can clinch it by beating Ovici in today's first match. If he loses, Smith will have to top Nastase in the finale, which pairs the two men who are generally rated one-two in the tennis world this year.

The Round Hill stadium was about 90 per cent sold out over the weekend, and a full-house crowd of 6,000 was expected today. The big attraction is the first Smith-Nastase match of the year, even though it might be anti-climactic.

"I don't know how it will affect me," said Smith when asked how he would regard the match if a U.S. team victory already is certain. "I've never played in a situation like that before."

The U.S. team is shooting for a sixth straight Davis Cup title. With a victory today, the Americans would go on to Cleveland for the first indoor challenge round in history, with Australia or Czechoslovakia the opponent.

Milwaukee race won by Hartman

MILWAUKEE (AP) —Butch Hartman of South Zanesville, Ohio, edged out Jack Bowsher of Springfield, Ohio, by 2.9 seconds Sunday in a late model stock car race at State Fair Park which was inadvertently cut short at 199 laps by the flag waver.

Hartman's 1973 Dodge Charger, which he drove to two previous victories here this season, pulled ahead of Bowsher's 1971 Ford Torino on the 116th lap and stayed there. But Bowsher felt he might have been able to regain the lead if the last one-mile lap had been held.

"They just gave him the race," Bowsher said. "I'd have caught him. (Paul) Feldner (of Richfield, Wis.) got in my way the lap before, but I was coming on and I could have won. Besides, he's got to go 200 laps, and what if he fell out on the last lap?"

Flagman Duane Sweeney said he waved the white flag signifying one more lap to go at the wrong time after a car driven by Bob Drevak of Ashland, Wis., went into the wall when a tire blew.

"I was worried about the danger hazard, and I got excited and waved the white flag on the 198th mile. Then I came with the checkered the next lap," he said. "It was a mistake. Nobody told me to cut it short. It was me and me alone."

Hartman and Sweeney both said they didn't believe there would have been any change in positions if the race had gone the last mile.

"It seemed like a good deal, cutting it short, and not just because I was out front," Hartman said. "There was a hazard on the track, there was only a mile to go, and there was no chance anybody was going to catch me."

Hartman won $6,422 by averaging 92.421 miles per hour, although 26 laps were slowed by rain and a total of 56 were run under the yellow flag. Bowsher, who had won the pole position at 108.551 m.p.h., earned $3,591 of the $34,750 purse.

Don White of Keokuk, Iowa, drove his 1973 Dodge Charger to third place, while Roger McCluskey of Tucson, Ariz., was fourth in the 1972 Plymouth and Feldner fifth in a 1972 Charger.

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Following are the top 10 finishers in Sunday's 200 mile U.S. Auto Club late model stock car race at Wisconsin State Fair Park:

saw missed blocks, for one thing. And I wasn't too pleased that we didn't come up with more interceptions and more sacks. I'm not disappointed, but I'm not all that elated."

At the same time, he took understandable exception to a suggestion that the offense might be depending too much on Chester Marcol, whose exemplary radar produced four field goals in five attempts.

"I don't see how you can complain about 33 points," Devine said. "I learned long ago that it counts if you win 7 to 6."

The Packer leader was not aware of the final figures at that stage or he might have noted that the Packer attack had amassed 407 yards, including an imposing 266 yards rushing, a fair night's work under any circumstances.

Miss Evert wins $6,000

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) —Chris Evert, the belle of pro tennis, had at least one reason to enjoy her second straight U.S. Clay Court Open tennis title.

She got to keep the money this time.

Top seeds Manuel Orantes of Spain, the men's singles champ, and Miss Evert dominated the 63rd National Clay Court with neither losing a set in singles all week.

The 18-year-old superstar from Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., waded through a somewhat disappointing field to take home $6,000 of the total prize money of $90,000. She had to come from behind several times in Sunday's finals, but took relatively easy 6-4, 6-4 victories over Veronica Burton, an English Wightman Cupper.

Miss Evert was still an amateur last August when she beat Australian stars Margaret Court and Evonne Goolagong on the way to her Clay Court title.

This year, Miss Goolagong passed up the tournament for "business reasons," Miss Court, along with 1971 champ Billie Jean King and the rest of the touring pros, was barred from playing by a contractual agreement and several other top women pleaded illness or family crises.

Miss Evert said the absence of the other top pros didn't make her victory any dimmer.

Jack's lose to Lakewood

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. — Lakewood, Calif., International Softball Congress world tournament favorite, scrambled to a 7-2 win over Jack's Rose Hill, Little Chute, Sunday.

Jack's is slated to play the Iowa state champion tonight in the loser's bracket.

Ed Klecker struck out 14 to lead Lakewood past the Wisconsin State champions. Bob Ellson worked the first four innings for Rose Hill and allowed two runs on five hits. Mike Allgeyer surrendered five runs on three hits in the final two innings.

Lakewood took a 2-0 lead in the bottom of the first on a walk, sacrifice and singles by Bobby Guy and Nick Hopkins.

The winners added four in the fifth on two errors, two walks, a 2-run single by Hopkins and a single by Don Frazier.

Both of Jack's runs scored in the sixth on a single by Gene Peerenboom and single by Ray Neveau. Gib Meisinger, running for Peerenboom, scored on Neveau's hit into center and Neveau scored when the centerfielder's throw into second hit him on the leg and bounded into the right field foul area.

Terry Young led Jack's with 2-for-3 including a double.

Porsche teams at Road America

ELKHART LAKE, Wis. (AP) —The two Porsche teams which have dominated the Canadian-American Challenge Cup sports car racing series this year will battle each other again next weekend at Road America.

Mark Donohue, who is racing for Roger Penske, has won the last two events. And the other two have been won by George Follmer and Charlie Kemp, who are racing for Bobby Rinzler.

Donohue has 59 points, Follmer 35 and Kemp 30.

David Hobbs, the most successful of the drivers in the series with non-turbocharged machinery, ranks fourth with 25 points in a McLaren Chevrolet.

Sturgeon Bay beats Appleton in playoff

STURGEON BAY — Northern Division champion Sturgeon Bay scored three runs in the bottom of the ninth Saturday to defeat Appleton 7-6 in the Fox River Valley American Legion League playoff.

Appleton finishes the season with a 29-10 record.

Sturgeon Bay chased starter Jack Gurholt in the ninth with Joe Bauer's leadoff single and two walks. Doug Schmidt got two quick outs with a strikeout and short fly to center which left the bases loaded. Mark Sawyer scored a run with an infield hit and Paul Berkovitz ended the game with a 2-run single up the middle.

Berkovitz was 5-for-5 for the night including a 2-run, first inning homer.

Appleton scored a run in the first on a walk, sacrifice and Doug Meyer's single. They added three in the sixth on Meyer's single, Curt Anderson's RBI single, two walks and Dan Heinritz' 2-run single. Two errors, a balk and stolen base scored a run in the seventh. Anderson's sacrifice fly in the ninth scored the final run.

Vanderloop, Heinritz on all-state baseball team

MILWAUKEE (AP) —Five players now in the minor league and the Milwaukee Brewers No. 1 draft choice are included in the all-state baseball team chosen by the Wisconsin High School Baseball Coaches Association.

The first team also included three players now in the Chicago White Sox chain: Dave Vanderloop, Kaukauna; Nick Bandow, Stevens Point Pacelli, and Bill Kautzer, Nekoosa.

Gary Hubka, Beloit Memorial, now of the Texas Rangers, and Greg Kuhnke, Nekoosa, now of the Kansas City Royals, were also on the first team.

Danny Walton farmed out

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) —The Minnesota Twins announced Friday they have signed Rich Reese, a former longtime member of the club who was given his outright release recently by the Detroit Tigers.

The Twins said Reese joined the club in Cleveland Friday where Minnesota opens a four game series.

Minnesota sent outfielder Danny Walton to its Tacoma club in the Pacific Coast League to make room for Reese, a first baseman-outfielder. Walton hit .177 with four home runs and eight runs batted in for the Twins in 37 games this season.

Browns top Bengals

Giants beat Jets, 45-30

By ALEX SACHARE
Associated Press Sports Writer

Who owns New York? The Giants.
Who owns Ohio? The Browns.

Those regional issues were decided Sunday in a pair of National Football League exhibition contests pitting bitter rivals. The New York Giants beat the New York Jets 45-30 at the Yale Bowl in New Haven, Conn. and the Cleveland Browns topped the Cincinnati Bengals 24-6 at Ohio Stadium in Columbus, Ohio.

In Sunday's only other NFL exhibition, the San Francisco 49ers defeated the San Diego Chargers 19-7.

After blowing an early 21-3 lead, the Giants came back and scored three touchdowns in the final period, thanks to three interceptions of passes by Jets' reserve quarterback Al Woodall.

Defensive end Carter Campbell raced 82 yards with an interception for the first touchdown of the period, and 55 seconds later, linebacker Jim Files scampered 20 yards with an interception for another score.

Finally, free safety Spider Lockhart picked off a third Woodall pass and ran it back 50 yards, setting up the final touchdown.

"We looked good, then bad, then pretty good again," said Giants Coach Alex Webster. "The two interceptions—by Campbell and Files —blew the game open."

Jets quarterback star Joe Namath left the game in the second period with an elbow injury.

"We suffered a letdown when Namath went out of the game," said Webster, "and it took us a long time to get going again."

In the battle of Ohio, the Browns scored two touchdowns within 12 seconds and overcame a 6-3 Cininnati edge late in the third period.

Frank Pitts raced 21 yards on an end-around play, putting Cleveland ahead 10-6. On the first play of the next series, defensive back Clifford Brooks stole a pass by Virgil Carter and ran it back 23 yards for another touchdown.

"Brooks' interception turned the game around," said Browns Coach Nick Skorich, "and that was a credit to our pass rush, which pleased me all day."

"There wasn't any doubt about it—they were superior," said a disappointed Cincinnati Coach Paul Brown. "They outplayed us—period."

Saturday, the Chicago Bears tied the Miami Dolphins 9-9; the Minnesota Vikings edged the Kansas City Chiefs 13-10; the Dallas Cowboys beat the New Orleans Saints 24-14; the Green Bay Packers topped the Houston Oilers 33-14; the Baltimore Colts trimmed the Detroit Lions 32-28; the Denver Broncos defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 38-17; the Atlanta Falcons beat the New England Patriots 27-10, and the Oakland Raiders downed the Los Angeles Rams 16-3.

Thursday night, the Pittsburgh Steelers whipped the Philadelphia Eagles 17-3, and Friday night, the Washington Redskins dumped the Buffalo Bills 37-21.

San Diego grabbed a 7-0 lead in the first quarter on a 10-yard pass from John Unitas to Gary Garrison. But veteran John Brodie, making his 1973 debut, brought the 49ers back in the second quarter, hitting six of seven passes for 65 yards including a three-yard scoring toss to Jimmy Thomas.

A 12-yard field goal by Bruce Gossett late in the first half put the 49ers ahead to stay. They clinched it with three field goals in the final period by rookie Tom Wittum.

The tie against the Bears stopped Miami's winning streak at 21 games. The Bears' Mac Percival and the Dolphins' Garo Yepremian each kicked three field goals, and Percival missed a 35-yarder with just over four minutes to go that would have ended Miami's unbeaten skein.

"We're not feeling any pressure," contended Miami Coach Don Shula. "We realize that every team coming in—like the Bears—wants to beat us.

"But our goal is individual and team improvement. We're getting ready to play San Francisco in our regular season opener."

Fran Tarkenton guided the Vikings on a 70-yard touchdown drive, then Nate Wright's interception set up Fred Cox' 20-yard field goal with 1:03 left in the Vikings' victory, accomplished despite five turnovers.

"Generally, the team that makes the fewest mistakes wins—but not tonight," said Minnesota Coach Bud Grant.

Jack Concannon, making his first start at quarterback for Dallas, was intercepted twice and fumbled twice, but old rivals Roger Staubach and Craig Morton came off the bench and rescued the Cowboys.

Staubach, playing only the second quarter, completed seven of eight passes for 156 yards, including touchdowns of 52 yards to Mike Montgomery and 45 yards to Les Strayhorn. Morton led a 70-yard drive in the fourth quarter, capped by a two-yard scoring flip to Billy Traux.

Don Nottingham scored from the one with 29 seconds left to play, capping an 80-yard, 14-play drive that lifted the Colts to victory. Denver scored four touchdowns in the second half—two by Floyd Little—in beating the Cardinals.

Nine-year veteran Dick Shiner, fighting to make the Falcons roster, helped his chances by throwing two touchdown passes and setting up two other TDs in Atlanta's victory.

"He's a winner," said Atlanta Coach Norm Van Brocklin of Shiner. "He's got some experience, and it's easy to communicate with him on the field."

Oakland went 51 yards in nine plays for a touchdown the first time it had the ball, then rode three George Blanda field goals to victory over the Rams.

Robinson leads tourney

WAUKEGAN, Ill. (AP) —Jay Robinson of Los Angeles captured 11 of his 16 match games Sunday to clinch first place going into Monday's televised finals of the $55,000 Columbia Open Bowling Tournament.

The 30-year-old righthander, who won earlier this year in Denver, wound up with a gross pinfall of 9,715, including 30 bonus pins for each of his 15 victories.

As the tournament leader after 42 games, the stocky pro leads a five-man advance into the windup of the competition, where $6,000 awaits the winner. Joining Robinson in the stepladder elimination format are runnerup Marty Piraino of Syracuse, N.Y.; Earl Anthony of Tacoma, Wash.; Norm Meyers of St. Louis, and Mike Berlin of Muscatine, Iowa.

Robinson, who has been the leader since the 18-game qualifier ended Saturday afternoon, took six matches in Sunday's opening set, then followed up with five more triumphs in the evening. This gave him a 52-pin margin over Piraino, who defeated Robinson 226-203 in their position round game.

Anthony, who took the Seattle, Wash., title last June, was No. 6 entering the final tilt, but rolled his way into the finals with a 299 last game effort, missing a perfect game on his final shot when the six pin stayed up.

In the championship flight, Meyers will face Berlin with the winner then going against Anthony. High scorer there faces Piraino, with the winner of that game going against Robinson for the crown.

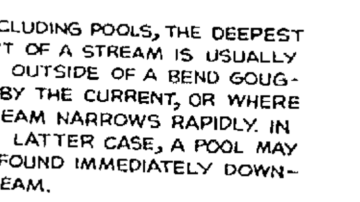
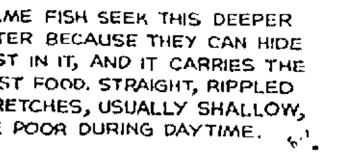
FISHING THE LOW, CLEAR STREAMS



EXCLUDING POOLS, THE DEEPEST PART OF A STREAM IS USUALLY THE OUTSIDE OF A BEND GOUGED BY THE CURRENT, OR WHERE STREAM NARROWS RAPIDLY. IN THE LATTER CASE, A POOL MAY BE FOUND IMMEDIATELY DOWNSTREAM.



GAME FISH SEEK THIS DEEPER WATER BECAUSE THEY CAN HIDE BEST IN IT, AND IT CARRIES THE MOST FOOD. STRAIGHT, RIPPLED STRETCHES, USUALLY SHALLOW, ARE POOR DURING DAYTIME.

MILWAUKEE —Quick Pakcer-Oiler quotes:

Tom Toner: (On his first pro interception): "I was dropping in that area, and I think Pastorini intended to throw at the wingback coming across. But I think Charlie Hall got into the wingback a little bit and he was delayed on his pattern. And the ball was there."

Jon Staggers: "That touchdown was a long time in coming. It was off a quick slant and, of course, I didn't expect it to go that far. I didn't know I had a chance to go all the way until the tackler missed me. Then I figured I was gone, although you can't see behind you."

Dan Devine: "The fact that Ray Nitschke didn't play in this game doesn't mean he won't play next week. The reason he didn't play in this one probably is that we played Jim Carter longer than we intended to.

"Perry Williams didn't play because he has a slight shoulder problem and, at the last minute, I decided to hold him out."

Andretti edges Al Unser

BY BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

Husky Butch Hartman won two stock car races in four days, Britisher Brian Redman and South African Jody Scheckter continued their battle for the L&M Formula 5000 title and Scotland's Jackie Stewart edged closer to his third world driving championship in a full weekend of auto racing.

Hartman, a 31-year-old truck dealer from South Zanesville, Ohio, won short track events at Milwaukee Thursday and Sunday to pad his lead in the standings for a third consecutive driving title in the United States Auto Club's stock car division.

Redman, a crack member of Ferrari's team in world endurance racing, won his third L&M Formula 5000 race of the season, beating 1972 Indianapolis winner Mark Donohue by 28 seconds in a $50,000 event at Road Atlanta, near Gainesville, Ga., Sunday.

Redman picked up $15,250 for Sunday's win, making his total for the season $84,300. Scheckter leads the money list with just over $112,000.

Stewart, apparently headed for retirement after the 1973 season, placed second to Sweden's Ron Peterson in the Austrian Grand Prix Sunday, padding his championship points lead to a healthy 21 over teammate Francois Cevert of France.

In other weekend action, Mario Andretti beat Al Unser by 28.6 seconds in a dirt track race for Indianapolis-type cars Sunday at Springfield. It was the annual Tony Bettenhausen Memorial 100-miler, and it saw only Andretti and Unser go the distance.

Americans give excuses

MOSCOW (AP) —Americans had as many excuses as the Russians had medals today for the abysmal showing of the U.S. team at the World University Games.

"We had to peak too early—this is burn out time for most of us," complained Roger George, decathlon ace from Burrel, Calif., and Fresno State College.

"I don't think some of the guys—and girls, too—have taken the games seriously enough," said Terry Porter of Fort Worth, Tex., a Kansas University student who managed to win one of Uncle Sam's scarce medals—a bronze.

"It's been a long season for us and we're tired," added muscular Dana Laduc of Tacoma, Wash., shot putter from the University of Texas. "None of us is at his best, but the Russians and Europeans are just peaking for their seasons."

Coaches and athletes alike lounged around the living quarters at the medieval Moscow State University dormitory and sought answers for the collapse of Uncle Sam's track and field forces in another of their confrontations with the Soviet Union on an international stage.

Through the first four days of competition in track and field, the Russians won 11 gold medals.

Pay increases linked to UW system reorganization

Post-Crescent Madison bureau

MADISON —The recently announced salary increases for several University of Wisconsin system chancellors had more than an indirect connection to the naming of Green Bay, Stout, Oshkosh and Eau Claire campuses as graduate and special mission centers in the soon-to-be reorganized university system.

While the proposed plan must still be acted upon by the regents, it is a clear indication of the course which UW central administration has chosen to take in response to legislative cutback demands.

To the alert observer, both the salary announcement and the mission proposal by UW Vice-President Donald Smith may have offered a clue as to the name of th enext chancellor at UW-Oshkosh.

For the first time, the Board of Regents acknowledged that some chancellors have been doing a better job than others and decided to reward them. They gave $900 to Chancellors Leonard Haas at Eau Claire, Edward Weidner at Green Bay, and Karl Meyer at Superior. In addition, Lee Dreyfus of Stevens Point and Kenneth Lindner of LaCrosse received $750 each and George Field at River Falls got $500.

The other chancellors didn't get a penny, except for Madison Chancellor Edwin Young who was given an $1,100 raise.

When it was announced that Smith had made his graduate and special mission campus choices, the salary increases came into sharper focus.

Eau Claire and Green Bay were included on Smith's list, thereby further rewarding Haas and Weidner. Stout was also named but Chancellor Robert Swanson was just appointed to the job during the last year and an increase in pay is a little premature.

That leaves Oshkosh and UW-Superior Chancellor Karl Meyer. UW-Oshkosh Chancellor Roger Guiles is retiring later this year and a commttee has been formed to find a successor.

The regents are obviously pleased with the work Meyer has done, as evidenced by the addition in his paycheck. Superior could not be chosen as either a graduate or special mission center because of its location.

Nobody will confirm the fact that Meyer's name is on the list of candidates being screened by a special faculty screening committee at Oshkosh. One member of the Regents stated that it would be quite premature to assume that Meyer is headed for Oshkosh.

The faculty committee is expected to present a list of candidates to a special regent committee within the next couple weeks. High UW officials are hoping that the new chancellor may be able to begin work as early as Oct. 1 but that deadline appears doubtful now.

School groups clash concerning recent statements

Post-Crescent Madison bureau

MADISON —The president of the Wisconsin Education Association Council has taken issue with statements made by the Wisconsin Association of School Board's head that warned of approaching teacher-school board conflicts throughout the state.

Fran Fruzen, out-going president of the strong teacher union, lashed out at the statements made by Frank Woodward, and released by WASB Executive Secretary George Tipler last week.

"They are pre-blaming the teachers before any strikes even occur," said Fruzen, acknowledging that teacher-board negotiations are heading into the most crucial 10-day period. "It takes two parties to cause a conflict. We could blame the boards for the problems but we feel it is better to negotiate in good faith."

Fruzen said he was surprised at the statements since the statistics his office has produced show that the number of unsettled districts is actually lower at this same time than last year.

"I would estimate that there are about 165 districts unsettled," Fruzen continued, "but there are several we haven't heard from so the number may be less."

In an attempt to confront the WASB, Fruzen has called for a joint meeting between the two organizations to discuss the issue with the newd media. As of yet, Fruzen has received no reply from the WASB.

The majority of districts start school within two weeks.

Post-Crescent Madison bureau

MADISON — The whirlwind boom market for black walnut, by far the most prized of the commercial timber produced in the state, continues unabated.

A new schedule of stumpage values for harvests from forest crop lands as established by the state department of natural resources pushed the worth of black walnut for assessment of severance taxes up by $75 per 1,000 board feet, for a new and historical total of $425.

Walnut trees are not abundant in Wisconsin, a fact that combined with the vaulting market value of the wood has brought reports about "tree rustling" from farmers' woodlots in those areas where the species grows.

State extends lease of Wolf River land for additional year

Post-Crescent Madison bureau

MADISON —Gov. Patrick Lucey has signed into law an extension for one year of the state's lease of Wolf River frontage lands in Menominee County from Menominee Enterprises to permit public use of the area.

The shoreland extends from the northern county boundary through Keshena Falls.

The orginal bill had proposed an extension of the lease for three years, but the state assembly amended the senate bill written by Sen. Reuben La Fave of Oconto, at the insistance of Rep. Herbert Grover of Shawano. Payment will be $250,000 for the next year.

The executive office explained that partial vetoes by the governor were primarily technical and designed to permit additional extensions of the lease in the future, if desired, merely through the appropriation of sufficient funds for payment to the Indian-owned corporation.

Police and fire

KAUKAUNA — Police recovered two speakers valued at about $300 which were reported stolen from the high school athletic field in the fall of 1971.

Police received a tip on the whereabouts of the units and went to a private home, where they found the units being used in a hi-fi system.

Police are not yet sure whether the youth who had the speakers purchased the units from someone else or if he was responsible for the theft.

LITTLE CHUTE —Volunteer firemen were called to County Trunk OO and Washington Street about 3:30 p.m. Friday, when a load of waste materials in a Lehrer Sanitary Landfill dump truck began burning.

Material in the truck included old film, batteries and rolls of paper. Firemen spent nearly two hours putting out the fire and ultimately a hoist was needed to submerge paper rolls in water as hose line water failed to extinguish the smoldering paper.

U.S., Canada to work on more cooperation in Great Lakes area

ST. CLAIR, Mich. (AP) —The United States and Canada appear headed toward closer cooperation in planning future uses and controls of the Great Lakes, now officially America's "fourth coastline."

William Salmon, deputy director of the Office of Environmental Affairs, told the quarterly meeting of the Great Lakes Basin Commission on Friday that the State Department would welcome more involvement by Canada in commission activities.

At present, Canada has only "action" agencies such as the International Joint Commission concerned with the Great Lakes. Salmon told commissioners Canadians would benefit from sitting in on meetings of the commission.

But the opening of such relations may require much diplomatic skill on the part of U.S. officials since Canada presently is miffed at efforts by some U.S. congressmen to impose artificial controls—such as diverting water at Chicago—on current high-water levels.

The Great Lakes Basin Commission, created in 1967, is strictly a planning agency and has no power to act or enforce regulations.

"Canadians might someday want a planning body of their own, such as this one," Salmon said, "and they would benefit greatly by being allowed to work more closely with this body."

Canadian representatives already attend commission meetings, but sit in the audience.

"It would be much more beneficial to both countries if they sat up at the main table and entered into our discussions," said Frederick Rouse, executive director of the commission.

"Of course they wouldn't be able to vote," Rouse said, "but they could play an important part in determining how the rest of us vote. As observers they could make great contributions.

"After all, we both are guardians of this valuable resource."

Related planning activities of the commission involves direction of numerous studies related to water quality control around the Great Lakes. The studies are concerned with both the management and development of rivers and lakes within the vast basin area.

The commission deals also with problems of shoreline erosion and fishery management.

Charles Gunnerson, director of the Windsor, Ont., regional office of the International Joint Commission, also called for closer liason between the neighboring nations.

"There already are 21 activities that entail Canadian and U.S. involvement," Gunnerson said. "It's about time we got together on more of them."

Rouse was directed to work with the Department of State in opening informal negotiations with Canada.

Rouse said Canadian representatives would be sought on both the federal and provincial level.

Accident victim still critical

Daniel Scorgie, 35, route 4, Kaukauna, remained in critical condition today at St. Elizabeth Hospital from injuries suffered in a car accident north of Kaukauna Saturday.

James H. Donahue, 73, Joliet, Ill., also injured in the accident, was listed in fair condition. He had been in serious condition. Both men are being treated in the intensive care unit.

The accident occurred about noon Saturday at the intersection of Outagamie County Trunks OO and J. Police said Scorgie's car, and a car driven by Donahue collided, throwing Scorgie and two other men from his car.

Concessions asked for farmer's snowmobiles

Post-Crescent Madison bureau

MADISON — Rural interests in the legislature are pressing for registration fee concessions for snowmobiles owned and operated by farmers.

One new bill recently presented would exempt from registration requirements the machines used as "implements of husbandry," and another would exempt snowmobiles used by the owner of any land in the state exclusively from the normal $9 fee for a three year period, but would require a registration for identification purposes with a one dollar fee. For a violation of the terms of such a registration, a fine of up to $250 could be imposed, the measure proposes.

McGovern sees tapes as key to impeachment

WASHINGTON (AP) — If President Nixon flouts a court order to release White House tapes, Congress must seriously consider impeachment, says Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D.

But Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson says Nixon has made "a very strong case" for not turning over the tapes to the Watergate special prosecutor, Archibald Cox.

The two statements were made during television interviews Sunday. Meanwhile, a Gallup Poll commissioned by The New York Times showed that 56 per cent of those who watched the President's latest speech on the subject believe he should turn the tapes over to the courts and the Senate Watergate committee.

McGovern, interviewed on CBS's "Face the Nation," said the tape dispute may go all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court.

"When that process is completed, if the Supreme Court holds the President of the United States must turn over the tapes and other evidence in his possession bearing on this case, and he refuses, then there is no recourse except for the Congress to give serious consideration to impeachment," McGovern said.

He said the Nixon administration should "go beyond the mere legal requirements and to open up and give us the facts ...."

Richardson said on ABC's "Issues and Answers": "I believe that the constitutional basis on which the President's brief rests is, in the light of the few cases bearing on it, a strong case."

However, Richardson said later that the issue "is a very closely balanced one."

Richardson said that on one side there is "the ability of the President ... to conduct his office on a basis which necessarily requires the confidentiality of communications to him."

On the other hand, he said, there is the factor that the tapes might be credible evidence in the grand jury investigation.

Asked if Nixon has the authority to refuse to release the tapes if ordered by the courts, Richardson said: "I have only the indication of Mr. (Gerald L.) Warren that if there is a definitive court result, that the President would, as he would in any situation, obey the requirements of the law."

Richardson declined to discuss details of the investigation into alleged political corruption in Maryland which has been said to involve Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

However, he did say that no material dealing with Agnew has been presented to the Baltimore grand jury probing the case. Richardson said it will be his decision whether or not to try to indict Agnew.

Cox is trying to get tape recordings of nine meetings involving the President in which Watergate was discussed. The existence of the tapes was disclosed at the Senate Watergate hearings.

The committee also has subpoenaed some of the tapes and documents, and the U.S. District Court has been asked to rule also in that matter.

The Gallup Poll commissioned by The New York Times was conducted by telephone Thursday night from a national sample of 810 adults. Experts say the margin of error can be as much as 4 percentage points either way in a sample of that size, the Times said.

The poll also indicated that 44 per cent of the people who watched Nixon's televised Watergate speech Wednesday felt it was not convincing. The Times said that only 27 per cent found the talk "completely" or "quite a lot" convincing.

In another development, Time magazine is reporting that convicted Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt is resentful that "prime conspirators" are free while he is in jail.

Hunt, serving a provisional 35-year sentence at the federal prison in Danbury, Conn., was quoted in an interview as being upset that higher ranking men who planned the break-in, including Jeb Stuart Magruder, remain free.

Magruder served as deputy director of the Nixon re-election campaign. Thursday, he pleaded guilty in federal court here to a single count of conspiracy stemming from Watergate. Sentencing was put off.

Meanwhile, a journalist who says she was sent to spy on McGovern told a New York radio station that she doubted that her information was of much use.

Mrs. Lucianne Cummings Goldberg had earlier told The Washington Star-News that she was paid $1,000 a week by

Plot to kill Nixon today uncovered

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) —Plans for a presidential motorcade through New Orleans were cancelled today after the Secret Services said it had uncovered a "possible conspiracy to assassinate the President" during his visit to the city.

President Nixon was flying here from Florida to address the 74th annual convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, his first public appearance in six weeks.

Before he left, a White House spokesman said the scheduled motorcade through the city was being abandoned as a result of an investigation by the Secret Service, the FBI and the New Orleans Police Department.

New Orleans police were asked by the Secret Service to arrest a former policeman who was described as armed and extremely dangerous.

Police declined to say whether the former policeman, identified as Edward M. Gaudet, alias "Punchy," was wanted in connection with the President's visit.

In Washington, Secret Service spokesman Jack Warner said: "Over the past week we have received information over a possible conspiracy to assassinate the President during his visit to New Orleans this date."

Warner said it was believed more than one person was involved.

Disclosure of the reported conspiracy followed a highly unusual public statement by the service urging Nixon not to make the motorcade trip.

Warner said the information on the alleged plot came from "police sources." He noted that although the motorcade had been cancelled, the President apparently "has accepted the risk" of continuing the remainder of his travel plans.

Warner said that neither the new route Nixon would take into the city nor the mode of transporation would be disclosed. He added that security had been increased as a result of the report.

The call to pick up Gaudet went out shortly after it was reported that New Orleans Police Supt. Clarence Giarrusso's car and a policeman's uniform had been stolen.

Gaudet was arrested on Aug. 14, 1970 when Nixon drove through the French Quarter in a motorcade. He was charged with attempting to desecrate a flag by burning it and throwing it on the President's car.

He had been off the police force nearly three years at the time of that arrest. On July 25, 1967, he was "allowed to resign" after being involved in an incident during which a firearm was discharged during a fight.

Giarrusso's car, a 1973 Oldsmobile with no police markings, was taken about 2 a.m. from the driveway of his suburban Algiers home. It was recovered about 7 a.m. near Lake Pontchartrain, across the city.

As originally planned, the motorcade would have been a short five blocks along Canal Street, stretching from Bourbon Street, familiar to generations of tourists, to the Rivergate convention center.

The big convention hall is located near the Mississippi River on Canal Street. During the weekend, radio and television advertisements urged families to turn out for the motorcade and a sizable noontime crowd was expected.

Nixon's speech was to be his first since he addressed the nation last Wednesday on Watergate and said it was "time to get on with the urgent business of our nation." He left for New Orleans after spending the weekend at the Florida White House at Key Biscayne.

Aides said the President would make a plea for continuing America's strong defense posture and for peace and stability in Indochina.

Nixon has not made a speech in public since he went to Kansas City for the swearing in of FBI Chief Clarence M. Kelley on his way home from California July 9.

Once again, the President is making a brief stopover visit. This time, he is on his way to the Western White House for a California stay that is expected to last through Labor Day.

He is making it an occasion, though, for displaying the top aides of his Watergate-reorganized White House staff.

National Security Adviser Henry A. Kissinger was coming from Washington to join the presidential party in New Orleans and also to receive a VFW award of his own for foreign policy achievements.

Traveling aboard the Spirit of '76 from Florida with the President and Mrs. Nixon will be Nixon's new chief of staff, Alexander M. Haig Jr. and Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler.

The President had been working on his VFW speech since he came to Florida Friday.

Governmental force puts down coup in Laos

The coup leader, exiled Gen. Thao Ma, a former commander of the Laotian air force, was reported killed when a T28 bomber he had commandeered crash-landed after being hit by ground fire.

The uprising, mounted by Thao Ma from his exile in Thailand, lasted only 10 hours. Prince Souvanna Phouma went on national radio at midday and told his people: "The coup has failed."

The premier imposed a dusk-to-dawn curfew on Vientiane but said it probably would be necessary only for tonight. The capital's airport and all border crossings remained closed

"Government troops and police had shown a complete loyalty and devotion to the cause of national unity," Souvanna Phoma later told diplomats in an hour-long meeting in his private dining room.

The premier said he had telephoned the Pathet Lao delegation in Vientiane at midmorning to tell them they were safe and not to worry. It is the negotiations with the Pathet Lao, in which the Communist-backed insurgents are expected to win wide powers, that prompted Thao Ma's rightist coup attempt.

Souvanna Phouma said two government troops were killed during a bombing run by the Thao Ma rebels on a military camp on the outskirts of Vientiane. The rebel casualty count was not immediately known but sources said the toll was light.

It was Thao Ma's second unsuccessful attempt to overthrow Prince Souvanna Phouma, who is classed as a neutralist. The general had been an exile in Thailand since his first attempted coup, in 1966.

The 42-year-old general and a small force of supporters crossed the Mekong River by boat shortly after midnight and seized the Vientiane airport about 3 a.m. They commandeered some of the T28 fighterbombers that are the Laotian air force's chief weapon and strafed and bombed the Chee Mai No army base four miles down the Mekong from Vientiane.

But the rebels got no support from other military units. Loyal troops moved through the streets of Vientiane and surrounded the residence of Prince Souvanna Phouma. Army forces moved out of the city to the airport, and by noon the premier was on the air to announce that the attempted coup had been foiled.

Thao Ma's plane was reported hit as he was attacking the army camp. Sources said he crashed several hundred yards from the airport.

Prime rate hiked to new peak

NEW YORK (AP) — First National Bank of Chicago announced today that effective Tuesday it was raising its prime rate to 9½ per cent, the highest in history.

The move was not unexpected since lending money remains in short supply. Other banks were expected to follow suit soon, credit analysts said.

Some analysts have predicted the rate may hit 10 per cent or higher before beginning to level off.

The prime rate is the minimum lending rate banks charge their largest and most credit-worthy corporate customers. While it is not directly tied to rates on small business and consumer loans, an increase in the prime rate frequently is an indication of higher interest rates generally and a tightening money supply.

The move by the Chicago bank, the nation's 10th largest commercial bank, comes a little more than a week after a prime rate of 9¼ per cent became industrywide. The prime rate has been increased 13 times this year previous to today. It began the year at 6 per cent.

The credit analysts have attributed the soaring prime rate to tremendous demand by corporations for loans for expansion to meet heavy consumer demands for goods and services, and to actions by the Federal Reserve Board to tighten the money supply.

Previous to the present series of increases, the record prime rate was 8½ per cent occurring during the money crunch era of 1969-1970 when many corporations found it impossible to find sources of loans.

The credit analysts have said the present era differs from then because loans are available, although at high interests, and corporations have found consumer demands so high that it often is profitable for them to borrow money even at the skyrocketing interest rates.

Greeks pledged new democracy

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — President George Papadopoulos has renewed his pledge to restore the parliamentary system to Greece next year. But it will be considerably different from the democracy his military coup ended six years ago.

"I declare before the Greek nation that I will keep strictly to the announced schedule regarding the stage-by-stage establishment of the democratic order,"

An AP News Analysis

Papadopoulos then went on to make a series of startling announcements:

—The lifting of martial law immediately, the restoration of all civil liberties and the reinstatement of suspended articles of the constitution.

—Amnesty to all political prisoners including Alexander Panagoulis, serving a life sentence for trying to assassinate Papadopoulos.

That parliament will not be responsible for defense; the maintenance of public order, meaning the police; or foreign policy. Those are reserved by the republican constitution for the president, the post to which Papadopoulos was elected unopposed in a referendum July 29.

There was no indication whether the constitutional court would permit any attempt to revive the parties that existed

3rd test in atmosphere

PAPEETE, Tahiti (AP) — Informed sources confirmed today that the French have set off the third nuclear test of their current series, and there are unofficial reports that at least two more are planned.

French officials would not comment on reports that the third bomb for 1973 was exploded Sunday at Mururoa Atoll, 800 miles southeast of Tahiti. The first two bombs were exploded July 22 and July 29 at the atoll.

Prime Minister Norman E. Kirk of New Zealand said Sunday that he believed the third bomb had been set off and like the other two had been an atomic device. The French are expected to explode a hydrogen bomb before the end of the current tests program.

New Zealand sent two navy frigates to the area last month to call attention to its opposition to the testing, but they have been recalled. The French last week seized a private Canadian protest yacht, the Greenpeace III, and are holding it at Mururoa. A private American protest schooner, the Fri, arrived today at the island of Moorea, 10 miles from Tahiti, for repairs.

Fires out of control

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ten fires remained out of control on more than 110,000 acres of range and forest lands in the West today as fire fighting efforts focused on Northern California near Yosemite National Park.

Information officer Dick Klade of the Interagency Fire Center in Boise, Idaho, said the most critical fire today was the 12,000-acre Granite fire in Stanislaus National Forest about three miles west of Yosemite National Park.

A large granite ridge kept the blaze from entering the park, however, and with 2,600 men on the fire lines, containment was expected by 6 p.m. PDT today. The U.S. Forest Service said the fire apparently was caused by humans.

Klade said the blazes in four states were being fought by 6,500 trained forest fire fighters and 2,000 support personnel, mainly National Guardsmen and volunteers. He said that was 80 per cent of the nation's firefighting capacity.

U.S. 50 between Sly Park and Meyers, Calif., remained closed as some 900 smokejumpers fought to control a 3,000-acre fire.

The only new fire reported since Saturday was an 8,000acre range fire being handled by the Bureau of Land Management north of Susanville, Calif.

Klade said 156,735 acres have been blackened by the fires. Affected land included major big game reserves in Montana and northern Idaho, timber in Oregon and Northern California and range lands in Oregon and Montana.

The fire center gave this breakdown by states of major fires out of control, the acreage they affect and total acreage burned:

—California: four fires out of control on 26,000 acres with 42,950 acres burned.

—Nevada: one on 3,000 acres; 3,150 burned.

—Montana: eight on 57,000 acres; 59,350 burned.

—Idaho: two on 5,000 acres; 32,285 burned.

—Wyoming: none; 150 burned.

John Russell, a fire center spokesman, said no deaths have been reported among firefighters. However, a U.S. Forestry Service spokesman said one man was killed in an auto accident when he fell asleep at the wheel after working long hours ferrying firefighters.

Officials said forests in southeastern Washington, northeastern Oregon and parts of northern Idaho were extremely vulnerable because of dead trees due to a tussock moth infestation.

And the center said lightning storms in southern Idaho, northern Utah and western Montana are starting new fires.

Although the Oregon fire situation eased Sunday, control of a 6,000-acre fire near LaGrande was not expected until Tuesday. The fire destroyed nine buildings Thursday near the eastern Oregon town of 10,000.

"As I told the children, a house is just a house. We all got out. That's what counts," said Mrs. Wesley Allen, wife of a LaGrande physician. Their 1½-year-old, $70,000 home was one of the nine buildings.

"I looked out the door and there was a wall of flames bursting over the hill with the most terrible explosive roar," she said. "We all jumped in the car and bounced down the driveway; and by the

Nixon establishes pattern for future

WASHINGTON—Bitter complaints by politicians of both parties that President Nixon's speech Wednesday broke no new ground and yielded up no new facts in the Watergate scandals entirely miss the point of what the President was really seeking.

Far from a detailed, point-by-point refutation of the charges made against him and his top aides, a course long ago discarded as both politically dangerous and factually impossible, Mr. Nixon had one objective in his fourth Watergate defense in as many months: establish a new base or holding pattern, slowly expand it as the Niagara of Watergate slows to a trickle, then resume full-time normal presidential operations.

May appeal to the country

But, as White House aides are saying privately, if "the politicians and particularly the media won't allow the President" to free himself from the Watergate coils, he then has a clear option: use the full powers of the presidency to appeal for help directly "out there" —to the country.

That explains the obvious ambiguities in Mr. Nixon's 29-minute rhetorical effort Wednesday night.

An example: Mr. Nixon, evoking memories of President Kennedy's appeal for help following the 1961 Bay of Pigs disaster, pledged a "new level of political decency" and took much of the blame for Watergate on his own shoulders.

But in the next breath he was obliquely criticizing the Democratic Congress for its "neglect (of) matters of far greater importance" than Watergate, specifically inflation, the possibility of a "tragedy" now being played out in Indochina, and U.S. military strength.

The clear warning: Mr. Nixon will not do any more to clear hmself of the taints of Watergate because he cannot; if the Democrats do not allow him to get back to the job of President, but continue what one high presidential aide called the "vendetta" against him, his next move will be full retaliation.

Can such a policy work for a President who has tumbled an unheard-of 37 percentage points in national popularity in the stink of Watergate?

Interest reported on wane

Some Republicans think it can, on grounds that public interest in the televised Watergate hearings is clearly on the wane and that most of the voters among Dr. George Gallup's 69 per cent who disapprove Mr. Nixon's conduct as President would overwhelmingly support his continuance in office rather than his resignation or impeachment.

"That is Nixon's real base of support," one Southern Republican leader told us, "and he won't lose it no matter what happens in Watergate."

White House strategists agree, despite public criticism from such Republican conservative stalwarts as Sen. Barry Goldwater. Goldwater told us that the speech "was not effective at all in the Watergate matter." But its appeal to voters, he added, to "let him get on with the presidency" was having a highly favorable reaction at the grass roots.

Nevertheless, there are political dangers in the President's effort to establish a holding pattern now and gradually broaden it, reconverting his crippled presidency back to an activist presidency.

Although Mr. Nixon decreed in his speech he will make no detailed response to Watergate charges, handling that incendiary issue in the press conference now promised within the next few days poses far more problems.

Testimony still imcomplete

One response now being studied in the White House: with new witnesses (including former White House political aide Charles W. Colson) still to testify, Mr. Nixon can rest on his refusal to deal with specifics until all testimony is in.

As for detailed answers to questions involving his own actions during the long cover-up conspiracy, he may point to the Gallup Poll to claim that, no matter what he says, the public has already been too confused by the media to draw fair conclusions. In fact, Dr. Gallup reported 9 per cent of the country believes Mr. Nixon "planned the Watergate bugging from the beginning"—a charge no witness has made.

But to Mr. Nixon today all such questions have become irrelevant details in his long-range recovery strategy. His issue is not Watergate but whether the government can govern. That was the motive of Wednesday night's uncharacteristically soft-spoken rhetoric. If the press and politicians pursue what Mr. Nixon calls the Watergate "obsession with the past," he will become shriller in going over their heads to the voters. In the White House today, there is no alternative to this strategy for presidential recovery.

Florida patrol car stolen from garage

LIVE OAK, Fla. (AP) —The Florida Highway Patrol is hunting especially hard for a stolen auto. It happens to be an one of its patrol cars, with a shotgun in the back seat.

Officers said the car disappeared Thursday from a garage in Live Oak where it was left for maintenance work. They believe it was stolen while the mechanics were out to lunch.

The patrol said it is the familiar tan-and-black cruiser with a sign on the door and a blue light on the roof. There were no clues to its disappearance, at last report.

The FHP didn't want to talk about the case Sunday except to confirm that the vehicle was missing.

Men try to buy plant at home, puzzle woman

BOSTON (AP) —A South Boston mother has told police she was puzzled by two young men who knocked on her door, said they admired the four-foot plant in her window and offered $5 for it.

She told police on Friday that she refused because her 8-year-old son had given it to her for Mother's Day, after finding it in the neighborhood.

The two young men upped their offer to $20. She again refused.

They asked her for a few "cuttings," and she refused.

"I'll just have to tell him it died," she told Bradley. "I wouldn't have the heart to tell him that it was pot."

'Bikewaymen' making riding paths unsafe

In response to recent bike robberies along part of the scenic East River Drive, the Fairmont Park Police have established a mounted detail of plainclothesmen —mounted on bicycles, that is.

In the past three weeks three cyclists have had their bikes taken from them. Chief Inspector William Devlin said the thefts have occurred at a bend in the path, where young thugs lay in wait.

"We had this problem every year," said Devlin. "But the patrols are new. We had hoped they would be able to combat this sort of thing."

Phyllis Kaniss, 22, was one victim of the "bikewaymen." The 22-year-old coed was knocked off her $160, ten-speed English bicycle by two youths on July 31.

ABC correspondent 'released by Mafia'

ROME (AP) —American television correspondent Jack Begon walked into a Rome clinic today four weeks after mysteriously disappearing. Police said he told them he had been kidnaped by the Mafia.

The Mafia transported him to the United States, but then released him, police quoted Begon as saying.

"I talked them into letting me free after I promised I would no longer investigate Mafia affairs," a police officer said Begon reported.

Begon turned up at the clinic on Rome"s Janiculum Hill in the early morning and asked for a through medical check-up. He was assigned a room and went to bed.

Scali told newsmen Begon repeated his statement that he had been kidnaped and taken to the United States by the Mafia, but said that he had managed to escape.

Scali said that the first word from Begon had come in a telephone call to his wife last Thursday night. He told his wife he was safe, but could not say where he was telephoning from or when he would return home.

He actually returned Sunday night, Scali said.

"He is tired. He needs a lot of rest," said Dr. Giulio Birotta.

The clinic refused to let newsmen interview Begon, a correspondent-producer for the American Broadcasting Co.

Begon was accompanied to the clinic by his wife. An attendant said both appeared to be "a bit nervous."

The 62-year-old newsman vanished on July 22 after telling his wife that he was going to interview Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor. The Burtons were then in their brief period of reconciliation prior to the announcement that they would divorce, but Begon was not seen near the villa of producer Carlo Ponti, where they were staying.

Instead his office was found in disarray, with a pair of eyeglasses shattered on the floor. His car was found parked at Rome's Fiumicino Airport and he had bought a plane ticket for Palermo, Sicily, to work on a documentary program about the Mafia and its financial secrets. The police said the plane ticket had been used, but they could not determine whether Begon used it.

Begon disappeared two weeks after J. Paul Getty III, the 16year-old grandson of the American oil billionaire, disappeared in Rome. His mother, who lives in Rome, says he was kidnaped and she has had a number of communication from the kidnapers, including a demand for $17 million in ransom. The boy's grandfather has refused to pay any ransom, and his mother reportedly has offered $500,000. But police investigators say they are still not sure Getty, a ninth-grade dropout dubbed the "golden hippy" by the local press, was really kidnaped.

Mexico threatened by Brenda

MIAMI (AP) —Tropical Storm Brenda moved into the Gulf of Campeche today where it was expected to gain hurricane strength as it headed west towards Mexico.

The National Hurricane Center said the greatest threat from Brenda appeared to be along coastal sections of Mexico between Tampico and Veracruz.

At 6 a.m., EDT today Brenda was centered at latitude 20.7 north and longitude 91.3 west, or about 120 miles west of Merida on the Yucatan Peninsula. The storm was moving slightly south of due west at 10 miles per hour.

Forecasters said Brenda was packing winds of 60 miles an hour, 14 miles below minimum hurricane strength.

Forecaster Neil Frank said Brenda would probably acquire hurricane force during the day. He said the storm's "ultimate landfall is uncertain, although the greatest threat appears to be the coastal sections of Mexico between Tampico and Veracruz Tuesday."

Man killed by police

MILWAUKEE, Wis, (AP) — A 22-year-old Milwaukee man was shot and killed early today after he held two children at knifepoint and threatened to kill them, police said.

A police spokesman said officers stopped the man near a northwest side housing project and were taking him into custody on a charge of drunkenness when he fled.

The spokesman said the man, who was not immediately identified, ran to a nearby apartment where he had been babysitting for six children.

The man grabbed two of the children, aged 9 and 6, in one arm, and held a butcher knife in his other hand, police said. They said he threatened to kill the children.

Police said they ordered the man to drop the knife, and when he did not, they fired. He was killed instantly, officials said.

Mrs. Goldberg

"They were looking for really dirty stuff," she said. "Who was sleeping with whom, what the Secret Service men were doing with the stewardesses, who was smoking pot on the plane—that sort of thing."

However, she told station WINS: "I don't think I told them anything that wasn't in the papers the next day. I don't think I was a very good spy."

Mrs. Goldberg said she was carried on the payroll of Chotiner's Washington law firm and thus her name did not appear on the financial reports made public by the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

Body that of officer

RHINELANDER, Wis. (AP) — An investigation continued today into the circumstances surrounding the death of a Hillside, Ill., policeman, whose body was believed to be the one unearthed in an isolated wooded area during the weekend.

Oneida County Dist. Atty. Michael Stroh said the body, which was found in a shallow grave.Saturday after a weeklong search, had been tentatively identified as that of Patrolman Anthony Raymond.

Raymond, 25, has been missing since Oct. 1, when he radioed a police dispatcher that he was stopping a suspicious auto on an entrance ramp to the Eisenhower Expressway in the Chicago suburb of Hillside. He was believed to have been abducted moments after an armed robbery at a restaurant near the expressway.

Illinois Bureau of Investigation detectives said Raymond was apparently taken captive, driven to a Wisconsin farm and killed. An informant directed investigators to the 160-acre farm where the body was discovered Saturday.

The body was still clad in a Hillside Police Department uniform and Raymond's police badge was found alongside, authorities said.

Stroh said the Illinois Bureau of Investigation, Cook County sheriff's police, the Wisconsin Department of Justice, Oneida County sheriff's officers and the Oneida County district attorney's office had been involved in the investigation.

Positive identification and determination of cause of death awaited results of an autopsy by the State Crime Laboratory, officials said today.

However, a lab spokesman said that if more extensive tests are needed, results might not be available until later in the week.

Sheriff Jack Phillips said today the investigation would continue for some time.

"There are a lot of things to look for yet," he said. He would not elaborate.

Investigators have continued to comb the northern Wisconsin area where the body was found in an attempt fo find further clues.

time we hit the main road, the flames were roaring over us. By the time we reached the edge of town, less than a mile away, we could see the house going up in flames."

Firefighters in Oregon areas have been hampered by yellowjackets and wasps angered at being driven from their nests by the fires. A Forest Service spokesman said one man had to be evacuated from the firelines to a hospital in Enterprise, Ore., for treatment of yellowjacket stings.

A spokesman for the Bureau of Land Management said the fires had eaten 15,000 acres and continued to burn out of control. He said it was considered the state's most critical fire situation with new blazes cropping up continually.

Bill Lyon, boss of 312 men fighting the blaze, said crews were attempting to hit critical spots with emphasis on protecting ranch buildings and fields.

The U.S. Forest Service and Gov. Thomas L. Judge ordered all Montana federal, state and private forest lands closed to public use.

The fire center's Russell said general cost figures on the fires are not available because "we are too busy moving thousands of men from state to state to figure them out."

Young Kennedy's trial on traffic count opens

NANTUCKET, Mass. (AP) — Joseph P. Kennedy III pleaded innocent as he went on trial today on a charge of negligent driving stemming from an automobile accident that left one girl partially paralyzed.

Kennedy's uncle, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and his mother, Ethel, were among spectators in the small crowded courtroom.

Seven persons were hurt Aug. 13 when a Jeep-like Toyota vehicle driven by the son of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy flipped over on a winding road here. Kennedy, 20, was charged with "operating a motor vehicle negligently so that the lives and safety of the public might have been endangered."

Kennedy will be arraigned and tried before Judge C. George Anastos in Nantucket District Court.

Robert Mooney, the town prosecutor, said the maximum penalty was two years in jail and a $200 fine. But he said that in similar cases, people found guilty were usually let off with a fine.

"I wish this had happened somewhere else," Mooney said Sunday. "We don't need this kind of publicity.

"We're trying to treat it as a routine case. But unfortunately, nothing is routine with that name in it."

The accident left Pamela Kelly, 19, Centerville, Mass., partially paralyzed with a fractured spine and broken leg.

Miss Kelly was described in fair condition Sunday at Cape Cod Hospital in Hyannis, Mass. But doctors said it was still too soon to determine whether the girl would be able to walk again.

Less seriously injured were Kennedy; his brother, David, 18; May Schlaff, 22, Grosse Point, Mich.; Patricia Powers, 18, Spring Lake, N.J.: Francesca de Onis, 19, of Centerville, Mass.; and Miss Kelly's sister, Kim, 17.

Kennedy's lawyer, Wayne R. Holmes, Nantucket, said Sunday, "I'm going to treat it like any other accident case that Mooney and I try, and we try about 30 a year."

Mooney said the case was "strictly a local operation —a local judge, a local prosecutor and a local defense attorney."

Mooney is a former Democratic state representative and Holmes is active in the town Republican committee.

The defendant is a nephew of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass. The Kennedy family has a summer home in Hyannis Port on Cape Cod about 20 miles north of Nantucket Island.

before the coup, most of whose leaders are bitter opponents of the regime. But it is not likely since Papadopoulos repeatedly has spoken with contempt of the politicians and has said: "The old political world no longer has a place in Greece's political life."

In addition, the president will appoint 20 of the 200 deputies in parliament.

"The new democracy is for all of us," Papadopoulos said in his speech Sunday. "Differences can exist and are even necessary under the democratic order. But passions and individualism undermine democracy, and self-discipline and superiority must be imposed."

The president's inaugural amnesty applies to all political crimes committed inside Greece since April 21, 1967, the date of the coup. It affects at least 300 persons.

Among those excluded are persons accused of crimes against the government committed outside the country. These presumably include such well-known exiles as actress Melina Mercouri and newspaper publisher Helen Vlachou, who have carried on viciferous campaigns abroad against the regime.

A government official announced today that the amnesty also would apply to the 69 men accused of taking part in the abortive navy rebellion last spring which led Papadopoulos to proclaim the republic and depose King Constantine.

Police and fire

KAUKAUNA — Police recovered two speakers valued at about $300 which were reported stolen from the high school athletic field in the fall of 1971.

Police received a tip on the whereabouts of the units and went to a private home, where they found the units being used in a hi-fi system.

Police are not yet sure whether the youth who had the speakers purchased the units from someone else or if he was responsible for the theft.

LITTLE CHUTE — Volunteer firemen were called to County Trunk OO and Washington Street about 3:30 p.m. Friday, when a load of waste materials in a Lehrer Sanitary Landfill dump truck began burning.

Material in the truck included old film, batteries and rolls of paper. Firemen spent nearly two hours putting out the fire and ultimately a hoist was needed to submerge paper rolls in water as hose line water failed to extinguish the smoldering paper.

Sheriffs call for laws to curb rustling

PRAIRIE DU CHIEN, Wis. (AP) — Legislation is needed to curb livestock rustling which is increasing as the cost of meat is rising and more people are moving away from rural areas, the president of the Wisconsin Sheriffs and Deputy Sheriffs Association says.

Crawford County Sheriff Ray Childs said sheriff's departments do not now have adequate means of coping with the problem.

A law should be passed, he said, which would require livestock identification papers and allow authorities to stop livestock trucks on the road and check the papers.

Childs said his organization also favors a statewide branding registration system in place of the county system which now exists and results in duplication of brands within the state.

The sheriff said he had a difficult time proving his case against a suspect he traced through three states because he only had the owner's description to identify the cattle.

"I think that livestock theft is increasing generally all over the state," he said. "But in the hilly areas where there is wilder country and vacant farms, there is a lot of this taking place, especially where people don't see their cattle every day."

The Crawford County sheriff said many livestock reported stolen turned up later wandering beyond their fence lines, and he recommended that farmers keep better track of them.

Childs also urged farmers to report any suspicious vehicles in their areas. He said he believed rustling was being done by individual operators rather than an organization.

Reports of rustlers using helicopters are mostly fantasy, he said, noting it would be expensive to use the aircraft and dangerous to operate them at night over unfamiliar terrain.

"It would be pretty difficult to have an organization in this business on a regular basis," he said. "Where would they take them?"

State use of compulsory arbitration may expand

Post-Crescent Madison bureau

MADISON —Compulsory arbitration of labor disputes in local government, an idea resented or dreaded by most local government administrations, will probably be more widely used in the future.

That is the judgment of a new labor relations advisory agency representing Wisconsin municipalities and counties and incorporated as the Wisconsin Institute of Municipal and County Employers, Inc.

The institute, in a report here, said the method is already being heavily used in the handling of disputes between numicipalities as employers and local police and fire employe organizations.

Although such compulsary arbitration was provided by state law in such disputes only about 15 months ago, already 48 petitions for the use of the device have been filed. Most were filed by police or deputy sheriffs. The legislature recently extended the mandatory arbitration system for police and fire services, and now has a bill before it that would extend the system to municipal employe organizations generally.

Municipal employer organizations have anxiously resisted such legislation, protesting that it has the result of turning over basic expenditure and taxing decisions to outside arbitrators who have no immediate accountability to the residents of a community who are liable in tax rises for the cost of his decisions.

The institute explains that the basic rule in compulsory arbitration provides for the independent settlement by an outside arbitrator of the "last offer" of either the employer or the employe group in a dispute.

Generally, municipal employers have opposed the "wide open" form of arbitration, so-called, because it permits the outside officer to make any decision he sees fit, if both parties agree to the use of the method, and may depart from the "last offer" of both parties.

Indian congress to back Menominees' reservation effort

KESHENA, Wis. (AP) — Restoring the Menominee Indians to federal reservation status will be the theme of the National Congress of American Indians convention this fall, the group's executive director said Sunday.

Charles Trimble told the Determination of Rights and Unity of Menominee Stockholders (DRUMS) organization that the proposal had a broad base of support which crossed all political lines. His group will meet Oct. 28-Nov. 2 in Tulsa, Okla.

The Menominees lost their reservation status in 1961 and, along with it, their eligibility for much special federal assistance.

The result has been described as an economic disaster for the Wisconsin Indian tribe, and a bill has been introduced in Congress to restore the reservation status and special assistance.

Vine Deloria Jr., a nationally known Indian author, told DRUMS members Saturday that the measure would initiate a new era of Indian affairs.

"It means the federal government is finally recognizing its responsibilities and obligations to Indians," he said.

Ralph Reiter of Keshena, a University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh student, was elected Saturday to succeed Lloyd Powless as president of DRUMS.

DRUMS was organized four years ago to oppose the sale of Menominee land to non-Menominees for the Legend Lake recreation project. Menominee Enterprise, Inc., which has held and managed all tribal assets since the 1961 termination, has also favored restoration.

FVTI offers food service course

A food services program for a variety of needs, both in the home and in restaurants, will be offered this fall by the Fox Valley Technical Institute.

Students will be able to enroll in short-term, continuing or degree programs.

Those completing the the latter will receive an associate degree, according to Robert Martin, supervisor of the program.

The restaurant and hotel cookery curriculum is individualized and will allow students to study at their own speed, progressing from one area to another after mastering a skill.

The students' practical food preparation experience will be put to use in the cafeteria and snack bar this fall, Martin said. Martin's department will be responsible for operating the snack bar, the hot lunch program and preparing and serving catered meals on campus.

The student stations will be in the commons on campus. FVTI is spending about $200,000 to equip the new program. Gas ranges, electric broilers, ovens, baking equipment, steam kettles, pressure cookers, ranges, and other needed items are currently being purchased through bids.

In addition to the students, the food services program will be staffed by the department's full and part-time employes and students involved in the school's work study program.

About 30 students will be accepted for the fall term, Martin said.

Martin said the program encompasses everything from the modern, short order food preparation to classical cookery. It covers everything from catering to quantity feeding in institutions.

An area which might be of interest to anyone who likes food, explained the supervisor, is hospitality foods.

Included in the lessons are basic instructions in laboratory experience in cooking, baking, equipment use, food handling, purchasing, sanitation and safety, terminology, menu construction and nutrition, portion control, presentation of food and food service sysfems.

The fall program has been planned as part of the FVTI curriculum for a number of years but has been postponed several times because of cost and because the board had required proof of need.

This year the advisory committee members, consisting of people from the restaurant and food industry, appeared before the board with statistics to prove there was a need for trained people in the field

According to Martin, food service is the third largest industry in the U.S. The total industry, including the retail and institutional areas, employs almost four million people.

"The industry needs 250,000 new people every year to take care of the normal attrition rate. About 75,000 of these are due to the expansion of the industry alone," Martin said.

Safety of J and UU intersection questioned

A fatal traffic accident at Outagamie County Trunks J and UU has prompted a complaint to the sheriff's department from a rural Kaukauna man who believes the intersection is unsafe.

Jeffrey A. Krueger, 17, route 3, Appleton, was killed about 6:20 p.m. Aug. 6 when his car, eastbound on UU, went through a stop sign and collided with a car northbound on J which was not required to stop at the intersection.

Eugene VanderHeiden, route 2, Kaukauna, wrote the sheriff's department a couple days after the accident stating that he was involved in two near crashes, in 1970 and 1972, at the same intersection. Each time, VanderHeiden wrote, cars eastbound on UU failed to heed the stop sign.

He said he had notified the sheriff's department after each of the two near-accidents.

VanderHeiden had asked that the county install a better notice of an upcoming stop sign for traffic approaching County Trunk J. In the alternative, he believed a flashing red light should be put on the stop signs.

There is a school converted to a house at the corner. That, combined with a slight hill on UU just west of J makes it difficult to see the stop sign, VanderHeiden complained. The problem is compounded for motorists not familiar with the intersection, he added.

VanderHeiden sent a copy of the letter to The Post-Crescent which sent a reporter and a photographer to the intersection north of Kaukauna last week.

Both J and UU appear to be good quality, blacktop roads in the area of the intersection. Except for the small rise about a quarter mile west of J, both roads are level and straight.

Traffic from both east and west on UU are required to stop at J. There are prominent, unobstructed stop ahead signs .3 mile east and west of J on UU and there are yellow, no passing lines on both roads before the crossing.

Traffic on J is free flowing. There are UU junction signs .3 miles north and south of the crossing on J.

Speed limit for both roads is 65 miles per hour. There are no obstructions around the two stop signs.

There are, however, several blind spots that could hamper the visibility of motorists eastbound on UU and northbound on J.

The converted schoolhouse is about 40 feet from where the two roads meet, in the southwest corner. It is in violation of setback requirements in the county's zoning ordinance, but the building was there before the ordinance was adopted.

Frank Charlesworth, county coordinator of public services, said that while the building cannot be removed, neither could major structural changes be made and a new building could not be erected in its place without being in violation of the code.

The old schoolhouse is as much an obstacle to traffic on J as to traffic on UU.

Lesser visibility obstructions are presented by a large grouping of buildings including a barn, a shed and a house along J, just south of UU. There also is a scattering of big trees in the area of the buildings.

The intermittent blind spots could hamper visibility of northbound and eastbound motorists for about a quarter of a mile from the crossing.

A woman living in the converted schoolhouse said it is not uncommon for vehicles, especially trucks, to go through the stop sign while eastbound on UU. She doesn't know if drivers ignore the stop sign or do not see it.

She also told a reporter that vehicles often travel too fast on J, particularly those southbound.

Sgt. Stanley Arnold, Outagamie County's highway safety coordinator, received VanderHeiden's letter. He said he has been to the intersection twice since the fatal accident and added that the issue will be discussed at the Sept. 11 meeting of the county traffic safety commission.

The Aug. 6 crash was the first accident at J and UU in at least five years. Coroner Bernard H. Kemps said there hasn't been another fatal accident there in the 23 years he's been coroner.

Arnold said he doesn't know, at this point, what could be done to make the crossing any safer. He doubted if there was sufficient justification to make County Trunk J traffic stop from one or both directions.

He said, however, that he wanted to reserve judgment until after his commission meets.

38 pct. of food items cost more

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN
Post-Crescent staff writer

It's costing you more for food in the Fox Cities now than it did in mid-July, especially if you're eating pork chops, chuck roast, eggs and certain dairy products, a survey of a few Fox Cities area grocery stores has indicated.

Up to 21 food and nonfood items considered common purchases were surveyed in each of five stores a month ago and last week. The results indicated that 38 per cent of the items increased in price, 18 per cent dropped and 44 per cent were unchanged.

All five stores showed increases in the price of pork chops, chicken, butter, eggs and milk. Of these, two stores had 50-cent increases in pork chop prices; all had at least 24-cent increases in egg prices, and butter prices rose 2 to 13 cents per pound.

Two stores had 40- and 30-cent increases in the per pound price of chuck roast.

The most noticeable declining price was at two stores where lettuce heads advertised as large and solid were on special at 19 cents, down from 39 cents.

Generally holding steady were the old reliables —cookies, coffee, liquid detergent, fabric softener, paper towels, a name-brand salad dressing and sugar.

In the survey, locally owned and chain stores were checked. One store outside the urban area was included.

Spokesmen at the stores said their prices hadn't risen dramatically last week with the lifting of the freeze. The ceiling price still is on beef.

The items for the survey were chosen by the Associated Press as part of its market-basket mix and by recommendation by a food specialist from the state Department of Agriculture. Name brand items and those of identical quantity were used to produce a fair comparison.

The meat products from each store were presumed to be of the same cut and quality in each of the survey periods, although this is almost impossible to determine.

The combined surveyed items in individual stores increased from 3.8 to 14.76 per cent in different stores while store ranged from six to ten. Up to three the number of items increasing in price per store ranged from six to ten. Up to three items decreased in price per any single store and six to eight remained unchanged.

Of the items available, the total dollar increase for a single unit or pound of each was 41 cents to $2.05. No store had all 21 items available for checking in both survey periods.

The items and their prices in each store for mid-July and mid-August are:

Ski patrol possible for Calumet County park

CHILTON — With the passing of summer and soon fall, plans for the winter recreation season have begun with the effort by Robert Voight, 45 Lincoln St., Chilton, to form a National Ski Patrol System for Calumet County Park.

The purpose of the National Ski Patrol will be to give qualified first aid in a skiing accident. Those who successfully complete the course will become members of the Ski Patrol System, an organization of volunteers trained in first aid treatment of injured skiers throughout the United States and parts of Europe.

The National Ski Patrol System is a legally incorporated group, administered by its own officers and affiliated with the United States Ski Association. Its purpose is to serve the skiing public without charge to serve area ski management as an economical, trained rescue organization and to promote safety and accident prevention.

The National Ski Patrol System was organized in 1938 by Charles Dole. Dole, then a 36-year-old insurance broker, had injured his ankle while skiing. For an hour he waited in the freezing snow, unable to move without pain while a friend, Frank Edson, of New York, went for help.

Two and one-half hours later, he reached the doctor after a ride down the slope on a piece of corrugated tin without the benefit of a splint on his broken ankle. Later, while still in a cast, he received word that Edson had died in a similar accident. It was then with the intention to prevent these skiing accidents that the ski patrol was formed.

Any average skier, 17 years or older, can participate in the course being offered at the Calumet County Park ski hill, according to Voight. If there is enough interest shown, training sessions will be set up so that the patrol can be ready when winter skiing season arrives. Voight can be reached at his home after 5 p.m. for further information.

Washington Island trip planned for senior citizens

WITTENBERG — Plans for a trip to Washington Island Tuesday were completed at a meeting of the Senior Citizens Group held Aug. 13 at the Wittenberg Village Hall.

Henry Cappel presided at the meeting. He read a letter from the Wisconsin division of the American Cancer Society commending the group on their cancer campaign. A certificate award was received from the Wisconsin Cancer Society.

Mrs. Yvette Hall, a VISTA worker, reported on Judicare, an organization which provides legal assistance to senior citizens in need of help.

Handicapped enjoy day camping

By LOIS BRANDENBURG
Post-Crescent correspondent

KELLERS LAKE —A week of camping, swimming, fishing and canoeing, plus a television appearance, ended Friday afternoon for 95 mentally handicapped children and adults from the area.

They had spent the week at the day camp on the lakeshore here, relaxing, making friends and learning how to get along in the outdoors.

The camp was staffed by 72 volunteers and sponsored by the Waupaca County Association for Retarded Children. Three-fourths of the volunteers were high school students from Clintonville, Marion, Manawa, New London, Waupaca and Iola. They and the other volunteers worked under the direction of Mrs. Clifford Rafoth of Clintonville.

The handicapped youngsters and adults were transported to and from the camp by bus each day at 9:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. Each day began and ended with a flag ceremony and sing-a-long. Their noon meal was prepared over an open campfire.

The group was divided into five sections to better carry out the various activities. A registered nurse and waterfront, craft and fishing directors were on duty all week.

A Green Bay television station taped Sesame Street activities Wednesday. Big Bird and Cookie Monster traipsed around the capgrounds and puppets, songs, dances and books added to the day's events.

Sen. Humphrey warns of tight feed supplies

WASHINGTON — Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., has charged that farmers may face a "tight supply" situation with respect to corn, wheat and soybeans in 1973-74 despite optimistic reports of the United States Department of Agriculture. He criticized what he called the government's failure to monitor and forecast adequately market conditions for crops and issued his own forecast in a prepared statement.

That analysis indicates that wheat and corn stocks, at the end of the 1973-74 market year, will be much lower than they were at the end of the past market year.

In the statement he said his estimates show corn carryover for next year will be down to 540 million bushels. That would be 210 million bushels less than last year. Wheat carryover was estimated at 280 million bushels representing a reduction of 148 million bushels from last year.

He estimated that soybean carryover would be 103 million bushels. That would be an increase of 73 million bushels from the 30 million bushel carryover of this year.

He said the estimates were based upon United States Department of Agriculture production estimates which he believes are overly optimistic, and upon utilization estimates acquired from industry and commodity specialists.

"Another factor that must be kept in mind as production and utilization demand figures are analyzed," he said, is that they often do not reflect what I call 'quality' and 'class' demands that exist within such commodity categories," he said in statement.

Shortages already are known to exist and likely to occur this year with respect to white and durham wheats, he said. In addition late planting of corn and soybean crops could adversely affect the quality of the 1973 crops, he said.

"And in the case of soybean usage this next year, much of what is not estimated to be on hand at the end of the next marketing year could disappear quickly if the fish catch off the coast of Peru fails again as it did last year."

He sharply criticized USDA announcements that it is considering imposition of export controls on wheat. "Export controls may be necessary but you certainly don't announce plans to impose them in an already overheated marketplace without running the serious risk of simply adding fuel to the fire and pushing prices even higher—and without consulting your trading partners."

He said cooperation with trade partners in international agreements is vital to the solution of how to avoid shortages.

Miller will report on the status of the sanitary district's plans and progress.

A review of traffic control in the area will be given by Capt. John Penney of the Waupaca County traffic department. Rex Oatman, conservation warden, will also be present and available for questions.

Harold Dushek, association president, stressed "Again this year, we are urging all members to come to the anmual meeting and acquaint themselves with what has been developing at the Chain this past year. There will be sufficient time allowed for questions."

The aimlessness of youth

The hideous murders of young boys in the Houston area has appalled many Americans. Why weren't they discovered sooner?

Houston police argue convincingly that there are just too many missing young boys and girls these days for them to do any kind of an efficient job in trying to locate them. To an extent they are right. More than 5,000 have been listed as missing in Houston and it isn't likely that many more than those already found were murdered. A characteristic of the last decade in the United States has been the apparent aimlessness of the young. They drift in and out of school, off to communes, to religious groups, to the so-called hippie neighborhoods. Disillusioned with the Protestant work ethic, with the immorality of the war in Vietnam, with the suburban ideology, they seem to have acquired a mystique of their own.

But it isn't exactly true. They are young people looking for leaders, for inspiration, for example. When they don't find it at home — and usually they don't look very hard — they become nomads, vagabonds. But they still need help. They often are children after all.

Parents of missing youngsters reported that the Houston police were unsympathetic. "They treated me like I was some kind of idiot." The assumption was that the missing youngster had run away. Quite obviously some of them had not.

In the climate of the United States in the late 1960's and early 1970's, the Houston police alone cannot be blamed for their attitude. But adult Americans generally might take a more compassionate look at youth. After all, they are our fruit. And they have rather turned around the course of history for these United States.

School board bargains

The Wisconsin Association of School Boards has published a study of the organization and the compensation of the boards that direct the vast public elementary and high school enterprise of Wisconsin and it is an eloquent testimonial on the nature of democratic government at its most vital level.

There are 436 local public school districts in the state, each of them governed by a citizen school board. The boards are responsible for the management of an enterprise that involves more than a billion dollars a year in public money, that enrolls about 1,000.000 children, who are served in a school plant that now has the breathtaking value of about two billion dollars and is growing with each passing month.

The districts are not uniform, in jurisdiction or function. But they share basic attributes and responsibilities. The most suggestive characteristic is that they are composed of private citizens, as distinguished from professional educators or bureaucrats. Mostly they are chosen by their neighbors. And mostly they serve for remuneration that would be regarded as paltry by any other members of boards of directors with similar responsibilities, problems and duties.

Last year the boards included 2,861 men and women. membership is not standard. Seats range from three to 15 in number, but boards of seven members are most frequent.

Perhaps the most suggestive fact that emerged from the study by the Association with the aid of the state Department of Public Instruction is the modest scale of compensation involved in such service. Perhaps there is no comparable phenomenon in the vast local government structure of the state.

Average salary — if that word is justified in this case — paid last year was $347, or less than $30 a month, and about $2,250 a year per board. Thirty seven boards, indeed, consisted of men and women who collected no remuneration whatever.

Retired State Superintendent of Public Instruction William C. Kahl, who arranged for the compilation of the school board expense data, said it simply but truly when he observed that "those serving on local boards of education must be considered as some of our most important citizens." We would add "generous" to the accolade.

Children need chores

The Panel on Youth of the President's Science Advisory Committee has issued a report recommending more dovetailing of education and work opportunities for young Americans. What the panel really is trying to do is present the atmosphere for becoming an adult that surrounded young people in the earlier years of this century.

The central theme of the study was that changes in labor and production patterns have terminated the need for child labor and left a vacuum that is being filled with more education. Along the way the child misses the opportunity to make his own decisions, to reap the consequences of his decisions, to become adept at something the society in which he grows will need.

Education "is not a complete environment giving all the necessary opportunities for becoming adult. School is. . individualistic, oriented toward cognitive achievement, imposing dependency on, and withholding authority and responsibility from those in the role of students."

To counter this the panel recommended pilot programs of vouchers equivalent to the value of four years of college which could be applied toward "a wide range of skill training as well as higher education." It recommended much more practical and productive work for adolescents during their periods of formal schooling.

Quite obviously this is the way things used to be. Within the family, children took part in chores, caring for babies, helping with household and farm pursuits, learning by doing so they could take over the primary roles themselves. Apprentice programs, even the widely deplored child migrant labor, had a beneficial place under some circumstances.

In the United States the four year liberal arts education beyond high school came to be regarded as every American's birthright, the reasonable progression in a society that made 12 years of public schooling available and almost required of all. In the last few years, we've found out this wasn't necessarily true. Young people themselves realized it and refused to go to college. Many who did wasted time and money.

Whether or not the nation really needs an involved program of vouchers is debatable. It appears that youth in particular is taking a hard look at the comparative values of university and technical education, at postponing higher education until after a trade has been tried, at acknowledging the worth of a variety of employment, training sessions, seminars, formal study programs.

Many 'hidden mysteries' in budget

MADISON — Thirty-five years ago Wisconsin chose a governor who strode upon the statehouse stage with a style and personality that will never be forgotten by those who were on hand to watch his merry inaugural.

In many respects the late Julius P. (for Peter) Heil of Milwaukee would have qualified for the old-time editor's favorite accolade. He was unique as a high ranking personality, a "nonpareil."

Possessing great wealth after a brilliantly successful career in an industrial corporation that was his own creation, he had the smiling face of a cherub, an instinctive generosity with his purse that used to worry his trusted lieutenants who guarded his door against raids by the unworthy, a loving flair for manly diversions, and an utterly innocent outlook on politics.

Found 'hidden mysteries'

Thus he was constantly mystified and frustrated by what he never failed to describe as "hidden mysteries" that he encountered in abundance at the Capitol, although his budget was perhaps one-twentieth the size that the present-day governor and the present-day legislature have put together for the fueling of state and local services during the present fiscal biennium.

What would Julius Heil have said about that budget of the state for 1973-75? He would have said that it contains so many "hidden mysteries" as to be baffling.

The affectionate memory of Gov. Heil intrudes as the news of the day continues to disclose the surprise, and sometimes the disappointment, of large numbers of residents and organizations and interests in Wisconsin as some of the less publicized and more obscure provisions of the new budget of Gov. Patrick Lucey are apprehended.

A handy example is the doubling of the nonresident sports fishing license fee at one swoop to a possibly prohibitive charge of $12.50 in a state that has so carefully and aggressively cultivated the tourist trade for the benefit of major regions for many decades.

The other day a protest meeting included denunciations of the Department of Natural Resources, which administers both the fish and game licensing laws and the tourist promotion service, for its action in so unwisely discouraging the good will of the vacationers from Chicago and elsewhere outside the state that the Wisconsin northland desires so much.

That disclosed another aspect of the problem of communicating the facts about a budget document that is not only the largest in fiscal terms but the most complex and diverse collection of policy decisions ever put together and enacted into law.

DNR did not propose that dangerously punitive charge, as it is now described. It asked for a modest revision of fees for outdoors sports licenses. But its counsel was spurned by the legislative budget conference committee, which evidently will be successful in protecting its anonymity.

Any diligent reader of the verbose document that is the new state budget with a fair comprehension of state and local government and their programs, could find dozens of other examples of new laws that probably are not yet generally known. More important, they would not have been enacted or would have been significantly amended had each of them been submitted to the usual public notice and debate and hearings.

Gov. Lucey is a far better schooled man than the ruddy-faced, self-educated, immigrant millionaire of a previous era who was so often confounded by what he found when he reached the governorship in a kind of career culmination long ago. He understands "hidden mysteries." He has exploited them skillfully to enact the most complex and least understood budget in the state's history.

He knew what it contained. He knew that much of the content would not have survived the careful and orthodox and slow procedure of his predecessors. Yet there will be many of his constituents who will conclude that they prefer the old ways.

The awe-ful Senator Weicker

How should one say it about Senator Lowell Weicker, R-Conn? He is my very own senator, from my very own state, and I wish him all the best, but I do wish that before the hearings resume, he would go somewhere to dry out his lachrymal glands. If he weeps once more about the human condition on television, composing his features like a puppydog's, I would not be surprised to see a John Dean-for-President movement.

Really, it is a wonder that Lowell Weicker can cross the street without stopping to bemoan the manners of motorists. If he had been the presiding judge at the trial of Willie Sutton, Willie would have died on the witness stand from old age. "Do you mean to sit there, Mr. Sutton, as an American, considering everything your country has done for you, back even before the Revolutionary War, and then the Civil War, and with all the traditions of honor, and justice, and respect for one's fellow man — Mr. Sutton, did you stop to consider all of that when you robbed the bank?"

"Why rob banks"

How one yearns, after a colloquy between Senator Weicker and a Watergate witness, for something of the flavor of the Sutton trial, of which a specimen exchange between prosecutor and witness was: "Why do you rob banks, Mr. Sutton?" "That's where the money is."

Considering Weicker interrogating John Mitchell, who admitted that Gordon Liddy had come to his office with a set of bizarre counter-intelligence proposals. Now everybody in the whole world, down to and including John-John taking his summer vacation in the Aegean, knows that John Mitchell was a) head of the Re-Elect Committee, and b) former Attorney General.

Here is what one has to go through on that point from L.W.: "All right. Let's start at the beginning here, if we can, in going over the testimony that has been presented by you, and do some probing. I must confess, Mr. Mitchell, that as I have sat here and listened to your testimony the only difficulty I find with it is that it sometimes is difficult to realize that we have sitting before the committee not some administrative assistant to some deputy campaign director but we have the campaign director sitting before this committee, and indeed we don't have some deputy assistant Attorney General sitting before the committee, we have the Attorney General of the United States sitting before the committee. . ." Can you stand it?

Anyway, Mitchell listened to Liddy's plan, dismissed him, and proceeded to other pursuits. Senator Weicker seems to think it would have been more appropriate for Attorney General Mitchell to push a button and call in an Execution Squad. He couched his indignation in Fanny Farmer nougat: "You mean after listening to what we would both agree are outlandish plans, that you were neither moved to great anger in your capacity as Attorney General of the United States, which certainly everything that he proposed runs contrary to what you were supposed to stand for at that moment?. . . . I find it inconceivable, unless there seems to be at least some willingness to share a portion of the mentality that you didn't go ahead and have the fellow arrested for even suggesting this to the Attorney General of the United States."

Can't get arrested

John Mitchell said, "Senator, I doubt if you can get people arrested for suggesting such things."

Senator Weicker would come back again and again. "Is there anything in this country, aside from the President of the United States, that puts you in awe, Mr. Mitchell?"

Mitchell. "To put me where?"

Weicker: "That puts you in awe?"

A. "There are very, very many things."

Q. "Do the courts put you in awe?"

A. "Very much so."

Q. "Does your oath as attorney, does that put you in awe?"

A. "Very much so."

It is only surprising that Senator Weicker didn't ask John Mitchell whether the Grand Canyon put him in awe. One wishes Senator Weicker were in awe of the aesthetic sensibilities of grown-up people.

Controversy equalizes fools and wise men

Don't let the phrase put you off. It was invented by Oliver Wendell Holmes a long time ago. He called it "the hydrostatic paradox of controversy."

"Don't you know what that means?" wrote Holmes. "Well, I'll tell you. You know that, if you had a bent tube, one arm of which was the size of a pipestem, and the other big enough to hold the ocean, water would stand at the same height in one as in the other."

This is why only fools argue with fools. If somebody has a rigid, extreme, or absolutely black-and-white view on a subject, the person who disagrees with him is usually forced into an equally extreme position to defend his own views.

Since the inflexible one can't or won't move, the flexible one moves over to the other extreme and becomes just as rigid as his antagonist. All arguments sink to the level of the lowest common denominator—which amounts, in the end, to shouting, "You're another!"

If there is one thing I have learned in 30 years of public speaking, paneling, symposiuming, and so forth, it is that the mind of a fool cannot be changed except by God's grace.

Please don't willfully misunderstand me. I am not by any means suggesting that everyone who happens to disagree with me is a fool, or that those who agree with me are wise. Sometimes, indeed we wish that the people "on our side" would go over to the other side, for they are an embarrassment to have as allies.

It is not a question of what one believes so much as how one believes it. A fool is not someone who is wrong (fools can sometimes be right by accident, and wise men wrong by calculation), but someone who refuses to understand or accept the full implications of his own argument. It is not merely that he fails to understand your position; it is that he fails to understand his own. (This is why, for instance, many persons who are reactionaries imagine they are "conservatives," and many persons who are totalitarians imagine they are "liberals..)

One reason I write so little about politics, in a direct sense, is that this is the area where people's minds are most congealed; and all that a political argument does (as I have said before) is confirm the opinion of those who already agree with you, stiffen the resistance of those who disagree, and confuse the minds of those in the middle.

What Holmes facetiously called "the hydrostatic paradox of controversy" equalizes the fools and the wise men—on the level of the fools. When you start to play a mug's game, you end up looking like a mug.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — A 500-pound black bear was killed in a tree after a wild pursuit by police.

The bear was first reported by a motorist who called police headquarters and said, "You're not going to believe this, but ... "

Officials said they had no idea where the bear came from or how it got here.

The Winnebagoes are becoming scarce.

Gradually they are leaving the State for their reservation in Nebraska. Some of them who own their own land support themselves by agriculture and pay their own taxes, refuse to go and it will be a hard job to make them. For if they do not leave willingly, force can not be employed.

How long the poor rascals will be allowed to stay remains to be seen. Probably only a few years, for if the Indians won't cultivate the land, the white man must. This is what "some folks say."

Marginal workers to suffer from wage hike

If President Nixon vetoes the minimum wage hike passed by Congress early this month, it will be on the basis that the increase would throw even more fuel on our fiery inflation and would lead to massive firing of marginal workers.

So strong is the threat of a Nixon veto that congressional leaders have delayed sending the measure to the White House until this coming Saturday, Aug. 25 —so Congress would have a chance when it reconvenes Sept. 5 to try to override a turndown. (Had Congress sent the bill to the President and then gone on vacation, the President could have killed it merely by a pocket veto and Congress would have had no comeback.)

The bill would raise the minimum wage from $1.60 to $2.20 an hour within one to three years, depending on the occupational category and, among other things, also would expand our wage-hour laws to include 7 million to 8 million additional workers. It is indeed a liberal measure.

Would it, then, accelerate our wage-price spiral? Would it swell our jobless and welfare rolls?

The answer is not a simple yes or no, as Nixon almost surely will argue if he does veto the bill.

For instance, against a minimum wage hike now is the fact that summer '73 is hardly tne right time to spur a new round of wage increases starting at the bottom and fanning out and up.

It is quite possible that against today's horrible economic background, a major minimum wage boost would set off a "ripple" effect, with the increases at the bottom leading to increases at the next level and then on and up to the top of the line.

There is the danger that businessmen would try to offset the extra labor costs by firing their older, less productive workers thereby shifting them from the working poor to

But supporting a minimum wage increase are Labor Dept. studies of wage trends before and after past minimum wage hikes showing only a short-term wage spurt right after the change in the minimum wage —but no wage "ripple" upward through the pay ranks.

The story is similar for prices. Said former Labor Secretary James Hodgson after the massive 1966 minimum wage boosts: "The wage increases granted to 1,600,000 workers to meet the $1.60 minimum wage standard had no discernible adverse effect on overall employment levels and on overall wage or price levels."

But, to me, these statistical arguments miss the two central points.

The first and overwhelmingly significant of these points is simply: How dare we ask the very lowest paid workers among us to stand in the first line of defense against an inflation fueled by the buying and borrowing of the affluent? How can we possibly justify asking those already being pinched the hardest to accept an even stiffer pinch "for the national good"?

What sort of distorted economics translates price pressures resulting from a worldwide boom and its soaring demands for goods and services into a wage curb on those who don't even earn enough to have normal, much less "soaring," demands for anything?

The second point is implicit in the first: 1973's inflation is being caused by excessive demands for goods and services, not by excessive costs of labor.

And if we now leapfrog back into a cost-push inflation after this dreadful demand-pull inflation, the reason will be today's price spiral, not any increases in the pay of the lowest-rung workers.

—It would take an immediate hike to $2.16 an hour just to cover price rises since the last minimum wago boost. It would take an immediate raise to $2.21 an hour just to maintain the 1968 ratio of minimum wage earnings to the earnings of manufacturing workers (55 per cent). At thia moment, auto workers are getting an average of $5.12 an hour, plus extra for overtime and fringe benefits.

The average yearly wage of a migrant farm worker in 1972 was $1,830; of a hired farm worker, $3,170; of a full-time domestic worker, about $1,200.

—Nearly 25 million Americans live in poverty today, many because the work they do doesn't even command the minimum wage. And those who do get the $1.60 hourly minimum wage are actually earning only $64 for a five-day, 40-hour week.

Aug. 26 proclaimed women's equality day

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has proclaimed Aug. 26 as Women's Equality Day and urged speedy ratification of the Equal Rights amendment to the Constitution.

The proclamation, requested by Congress, said the nation has made giant strides in recent years toward ensuring equal economic opportunity for women.

"Much still remains to be done," Nixon said. "American women, though they represent a majority od our population, still suffer from myriad forms of discrimination."

Nixon said the Equal Rights amendment, now before the states for ratificiation, "can represent a giant step forward in achieving full equality of oportunity for all Americans as we approach the 200th birthday of our nation."

Vasectomy doesn't rob one of manhood

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Three years ago I had a vasectomy and since that time my mother has been very cool to me. She was very strongly against it. She also blames my wife for talking me into it, but I assure you it was my own decision. I realized it was the best thing to do.

We have three children and don't wish to raise more than that. My wife had two very difficult Caesarean sections.

The problem is my mother maintains that vasectomy robs a man of his manhood. She constantly brings this up to my wife. Would you please assure her that nothing has changed? I don't believe I am any less a man for having had a vasectomy. —J.L.H.

I would guess that your mother probably is confusing vasectomy and castration, which are two entirely different things. If that's her trouble, it might be easier to understand why she has been making such an issue for three years.

Castration means removal of the testes, or male sex glands —the operation that is (or used to be) employed to make males into eunuchs, or sexless individuals, to work as slaves in harems.

This not only put an end to their sexual activity, but the removal of the glands deprived them of male hormones so they became changed physically and emotionally and did indeed "lose their manhood."

Vasectomy, which your mother apparently does not understand, is a quite different procedure. The testes are not removed or disturbed in any way. They continue to produce male hormones.

The only thing that is involved is removing or cutting the duct which carries sperm from the glands. This prevents fathering any more children, but that is all it does. It does not change the man in any other way except to prevent his having any more children.

I hope this solves your problem! if your mother already understood the difference and still insisted on criticising, I'm sure I can't see her point. Vasectomy certainly doesn't make you any less a man. The only basis for your mother's harassing of you then would appear to be that she wants more grandchildren. And it seems to me that you and your wife have something to say about that.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You mentioned in your column once that you did not advise women to douche, but you never explained why.
—Mrs. A.M.

You must be a new reader. The point is that there is no purpose in douching, unless for medical purposes, in which case be guided by your doctor's instructions.

The only reason many women douche is because they were brought up to do so by mamas who said they "ought to" but didn't know why except they had been told to.

A healthy vaginal tract cleans itself. Using a routine douche can wash away natural secretions and sometimes contribute to irritation that otherwise would not exist.

It's like your nose —if you have a cold, blow your nose; but when you don't have a cold there's certainly no point in trying to wash the inside of it. Same with the vagina

---

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I don't know if it is from having babies (I've had six) or what, but my vagina seems to be stretched. There isn't much friction when my husband and I have intercourse. Sometimes one or both of us will not reach a climax. Is there anything that can be done about this—Mrs. T.

Yes. Surgery can correct this. The person to consult, of course, is a gynecologist.

Are you bothered with ringing in the ears? If so, write to Thosteson in care of The Post-Crescent for the booklet, "Ear Noises — Their Causes and Cures," enclosing with your request 15 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed (use ZIP code), stamped envelope.

Thosteson welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

State Fair considered success

MILWAUKEE (AP) —The Wisconsin State Fair, billed as "the start of something new" this year, ended Sunday with exposition officials feeling the approach had succeeded.

James Greiner, its new director, said public acceptance of major fairground additions and renovations had been overwhelming during the 10-day run.

Paid attendance was 607,115 persons, which officials said was second only to the 652,434 in 1966. But total attendance was reported at about 740,000, compared with more than 900,000 last year.

One of the new things Greiner said was emphasized this year was communication between farmers and consumers.

Farmers only talk to each other at such events as Farm Progress Days in Fond du Lac and the World Dairy Expo in Madison, he said.

Greiner also said emphasis was put on friendliness at this year's fair.

"We are harping on the fact that fairgoers pay our salaries, and the only way they are going to come back is if they are treated nicely," he said.

The fair director said officials were especially strict on cleanliness and adherence to health regulations by concessionaires and exhibitors.

He said the rush to complete construction of new facilities this year had caused some inconveniences for both the public and exhibitors. But he said plans were being finalized to spend $1.75 million to spruce up the facilities before the 1974 fair.

One complaint received this year, he said, was that the hitches in the new cattle barn were too high and another was the use of heavy road stone instead of grass in some areas of the fairgrounds.

REPORT AND RECOMMENDATION
OUTAGAMIE COUNTY ZONING COMMITTEE
Date: June 29, 1973
Subject: Proposed amendment to the District Zoning Map of the Town of Grand Chute
Petitioner: Frank D. Kronser
File No: Z-8-73

This petition proposed to rezone approximately 2 acres of land from Commercial District and Light Industrial District to Light Industrial District.

A public hearing on this petition was held by the Zoning Committee on June 29, 1973. The hearing was preceded by:

1. Publication of a Class 2 Notice in the Appleton Post-Crescent.

2. Notification by Certified Mail of the time, place and subject of the hearing to. The petitioner, Town Clerk and Town Chairman of the Town of Grand Chute.

3. Notification by First Class Mail to all owners of property within 300 feet of the property to be rezoned of the time, place and subject of the hearing.

The applicants request would appear to be consistent with the existing land use and zoning for the area in question in that most of the approximately two acres involved is currently zoned light industrial. It is also appropriate to rezone some of the commercially zoned land between Lynndale Avenue and the Soo Line Railroad and extending 400 feet south of Wisconsin Avenue as this, in fact, constitutes "strip zoning".

The Town of Grand Chute recommends the rezoning be approved. There are no objections to the rezoning.

Based on the existing land use, zoning and the fact that the adopted land use plan indicates the said area is best suited to industrial use, the Zoning and Economic Advancement Committee recommends this rezoning be approved by the County Board.

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. Atty. George Beall in Baltimore reportedly has obtained a diary of kickbacks and payoffs to Maryland political figures that was kept by a former aide to Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, the New York Daily News said Sunday.

Quoting unnamed authoritative sources, the News called the diary a loose compilation of payments from contractors and consultants to Jerome Wolff, who was state roads commissioner from 1966 to 1968.

Agnew was governor of Maryland in 1967 and 1968. Wolff was a vice presidential aide until 1970, when he left to become president of Greiner Environmental Systems, Inc.

A federal grand jury in Baltimore is investigating Agnew and other political and financial figures for possible bribery, extortion and tax fraud. Agnew says he is innocent of wrongdoing.

Time magazine quoted a Justice Department official on Sunday as saying, "the department has no choice" but to indict Agnew.

"At least three witnesses have told of delivering cash payoffs to Agnew. The evidence is so strong that the case must be taken to trial," the official said.

Time also reported that Agnew had sought to tap President Nixon's Watergate lawyers for help in preparing a constitutional defense that would prevent the vice president from having to go on trial, if indicted, while still in office.

Agnew asked Nixon's lawyers to explore the possibility that the vice president might adopt Nixon's own argument that he cannot be prosecuted until after he has been impeached, convicted and removed from office by Congress, Time said.

44 per cent of public not convinced by Nixon

NEW YORK (AP) — A Gallup Poll commissioned by the New York Times shows that about 44 per cent of the people who watched President Nixon's latest address on Watergate found it "not at all convincing."

Only 27 per cent found the President's speech last Wednesday night "completely" or "quite a lot" convincing, the newspaper reported Sunday.

Other highlights of the poll:

–50 per cent of those who watched did not believe the President's statement that he had no involvement in the planning or coverup of the Watergate burglary; 38 per cent believed him.

–50 per cent believed Nixon should turn over tape recordings of his meetings with aides to the Senate Watergate committee and the courts; 36 per cent said no.

–58 per cent disagreed with Nixon's statement that civil rights and antiwar protests helped create the atmosphere that led to the Watergate crimes; 28 per cent agreed.

The poll was based on a national sample of 810 adults reached by telephone Thursday night. Experts say the poll's margin of error was up to four percentage points either way, the Times said.

To the question "How convincing did you find President Nixon's speech?" — 15 per cent responded, completely convincing; 12 per cent said, quite a lot; 25 per cent said, somewhat; 44 per cent said, not at all, and 4 per cent had no opinion.

Replies to that question were also broken down politically.

Among Republicans, 32 per cent responded, completely convincing; 18 per cent said, quite a lot; 24 per cent, somewhat; 23 per cent, not at all, and 3 per cent no opinion.

Among Democrats it was 7 per cent, completely; 7 per cent, quite a lot; 27 per cent, somewhat; 55 per cent, not at all and 4 per cent no opinion.

The breakdown for independents: 13 per cent, completely; 12 per cent, quite a lot; 23 per cent, somewhat; 48 per cent not at all, and 4 per cent no opinion.

Innovative projects encouraged by state

Post-Crescent Madison bureau

MADISON — A variety of innovative outdoors improvement projects is being developed by counties with the encouragement of grants by the state department of natural resources representing money formerly spent by the state for wild animal predator bounties.

Northeastern Wisconsin project grants approved recently illustrate the variety, and include sanitary facilities at the Collins marsh nature study center in Manitowoc County, a roadside picnic area and canoe launch planted by the Shoto River recreation club, development of a nature study area in the Freedom school district in Outagamie County, improvement of shooting ranges in Vilas County and hunter walking trails in Forest County.

Sentencing awaited in deaths of 10

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP) —Herbert W. Mullin, convicted of murdering 10 persons in a three-week shooting spree early this year, is to be sentenced Sept. 18.

Mullin, wearing an orange prison uniform and with his ankles chained, sat tight-lipped, staring straight ahead as the verdict was read Sunday in Santa Cruz County Superior Court.

The defense had admitted that Mullin, a 26-year-old former college honor

A six-man, six-woman jury in its third day of deliberations found Mullin guilty on two counts of first-degree murder and eight counts of second-degree murder. He was judged sane on all 10 counts.

Because the defense case was based solely on Mullin's mental state, the guilt and sanity phases of the trial were held simultaneously.

Mullin, son of a retired Marine Corps sergeant from nearby Felton, was convicted of killing a young couple, a woman and her two young sons, four teen-age campers and an elderly ex-prizefighter.

Mullin took the witness stand late in the three-week trial and admitted killing three more persons—a transient, a coed hitchhiker and a Los Gatos, Calif., priest stabbed to death in his confessional.

He said all the slayings were human sacrifices aimed at preventing a disastrous earthquake. He also said telepathic messages from his father and others goaded him to kill.

Mullin, who dropped out of college despite high grades, had been in at least two mental institutions and had a long history of drug use, authorities said.

Psychiatrists who testified for both sides agreed Mullin was a paranoid schizophrenic but disagreed on whether he was capable of distinguishing right from wrong.

Judge Charles S. Franich told jurors that legal insanity required a finding of a "diseased or deranged position of mind which makes the defendant incapable of knowing the nature or quality of his acts."

Jury foreman Kenneth Springer, owner of a Felton television repair shop, said jurors "deliberated on every question."

"We took several votes on several counts," he said. "We were never further away on any count than a question mark put beside a finding on the question of sanity."

Defense attorney James Jackson said the verdict was irrational. "If he's not mentally diminished, nobody is," he said of Mullin.

"Most people think about what's going to happen to the guy if he goes to a hospital and some doctor lets him out," Jackson said. "If he went to a hospital and was never going to get out, I think we'd have a lot more insanity verdicts."

Mullin was found guilty of first-degree murder in the Jan. 25 slayings of Kathy Francis, 29, and James R. Gianera, 24.

Mullin's next victims were four boys shot in the forehead at their mountain campsite. They were Robert Michael Spector, 18, and Brian Scott Card, 19, Van Nuys, Calif.; David Allan Oliker, 18, Sherman Oaks, Calif.; and Mark Dreibelbis, 15, of Fleetwood, Pa.

Mullin was arrested in his car Feb. 13, moments after he shot to death retired boxer Fred Perez, 72, as he stood in a driveway here. In the car, police found guns that they linked to the other shootings.

Synod to suspend Tietjen

ST. LOUIS (AP) —The board of control of Concordia Seminary has voted to suspend the school's president, the Rev. John H. Tietjen.

But the suspension, ordered during a closed meeting here this weekend, will not become effective until the board determines the legality of the suspension procedures.

Church officials indicated that the Rev. Mr. Tietjen will continue as president in the meantime.

The seminary is the major theological school of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

Church conservatives have accused the Rev. Mr. Tietjen, reportedly a leader of the synod's liberal faction, of teaching false doctrine at the seminary located in suburban Clayton.

The dispute between the liberal and conservative elements of the synod centers around interpretation of the Bible.

No details have been released concerning reasons for the board's action against the Rev. Mr. Tietjen or whether any specific charges were made.

Vat of acid bursts, two workers killed

PIERCE, Fla. (AP) —A "tidal wave of phosphoric acid" killed two workmen when a 32-foot-high tank containing 1,800 tons of the chemical ruptured and collapsed.

Police said 15 other workmen at the Agrico Chemical Co. complex escaped injury Sunday but three firemen were burned by the acid while attempting to recover the two bodies.

"The acid was three to four feet deep," sheriff's Deputy George Jacoby said.

Jacoby said it was not known what caused the rupture of the 50-foot-diameter tank, which was 12 to 15 feet above the ground on steel girders. The acid was used in making fertilizer. Authorities identified the victims as Herman Kitchen, 45, Plant City, Fla., an employe of Agrico Chemical Co., and Gilbert Leblanc, 54, Tampa, Fla., driver of a tank truck making a delivery to the plant.

One of the injured firemen was admitted to Lakeland General Hospital with burns on his legs, arms and eyes. The other two were treated and released.

Burglar steals nude scenes

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) —A burglar who cut himself while climbing through a theater's bathroom window Friday snipped out every nude scene of an X-rated film, police said.

He left blood on the floor and walls of the projection room, they added.

"He was apparently interested in the nude scenes," said theater manager James Wagner. "We found some of the pieces of the film out in the parking lot."

Wagner said 10-foot sections had been cut from the five reels of "1001 Danish Delights" left strewn about the projection room.

He said the theater has a duplicate of the film.

Keating takes up post

TEL AVIV (AP) —Veteran diplomat Kenneth B. Keating has arrived here to take over his post as U.S. ambassador to Israel.

He succeeds Walworth Barbour, who resigned last February after 11 years as ambassador. The top-level post has been vacant six months.

Keating, 73, is a former Republican congressman and senator from New York. He served as ambassador to India during the December 1971 India-Pakistan war.

Court ruling nails 'Throat'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Deep Throat," the movie that made pornography "chic" and pushed permissiveness to new extremes, is being strangled by legal problems, one of the first noticeable victims of a tough U.S. Supreme Court ruling on obscenity.

Distributors of the movie say they have ceased peddling it to theaters. In towns where the film is still playing, exhibitors are being urged by their attorneys to tone down advertising and assume a low profile.

In at least 12 American cities "Deep Throat" has been seized on obscenity charges. Judges in New York City, Cleveland and Miami Beach have ruled that the movie is obscene. Court tests are pending elsewhere.

At the Pussycat Theater here, where "Deep Throat" has been playing since last November, the show goes on. The theater owner and manager are awaiting resumption of their obscenity trial. It was halted while they appealed, unsuccessfully, to have the charges dropped.

There is no hint that theater owner Vince Miranda will close the show voluntarily. Its recent gross receipts have topped $60,000 a week, although a theater spokesman notes that the take has declined considerably from the $98,000 a week it was reaping early in the run. Tickets to "Deep Throat" cost $5 apiece.

The film's national gross receipts already have climbed past $3.5 million, an enviable return on a production that cost $25,000 to make in six days in Miami.

But litigation costs money and the price rises when fines are imposed, as the exhibitors found out in New York when Judge Joel J. Tyler fined them $100,000 and banned the movie.

In New York, a spokesman for Damiano Productions says the company has stopped distribution of "Deep Throat" because of "the law." A subdistributor, Aquarius Films, has also halted distribution because of the litigation.

The sex in the movie is explicity real, classifying it as hard core pornography, the kind of film that once was confined to stag gatherings, whispered about but not discussed openly and certainly not shown in the company of decent women.

Times have changed indeed. Outside the Pussycat Theater, women gamely line up for the show along with their husbands or boyfriends. No one hides behind dark glasses and the crowd is decidedly upper middle class.

In a recent four-day period the University Research Group, commissioned by a defense attorney in the local "Deep Throat" trial, conducted a survey of 2,600 of the movie's patrons, providing some hint of who goes to see "Deep Throat."

The survey found that almost half of the viewers were between 20 and 29 with another 29 per cent between 30 and 39. The show's $5 ticket price seemed to attract those well able to afford it — 47 per cent of the group earned between $10,000 and $25,000 per year.

The researchers established that 51 per cent of the sample were married and 31 per cent brought their spouses. Another 16 per cent came on dates and most of the balance of viewers visited the theater with friends.

In New York, where the film grossed $1.3 million in a 39-week run before it was closed down, mink-coated ladies regularly braved the winter chill to stand in line for the show.

It was a sight that worried some — oddly including the producer of "Deep Throat," 44-year-old Gerard Damiano a former hairdresser who has been stunned by the film's success.

"'Deep Throat' has become a household word," he said, "only because the country is in a lot of trouble ... Because basically the movie's success has proven to me that there is such a void, such a need for sexual awareness, that the movie was accepted as something people can grab onto and discuss openly because of its humorous aspects."

Some critics lauded "Deep Throat" for its technical slickness and attempt at telling a story which elevated it above the usual run of porno movies with their emphasis on athletics rather than script.

The New York City ruling seemed to indicate that with or without the Supreme Court decision, "Deep Throat" would have been subject to repeated legal attacks. The problem was not that it was a dirty movie; there had been many before and a few had even made more money than "Deep Throat." The problem was the film's respectability.

But Judge Tyler, in his New York decision banning the film, expressed anger when he said of the film, "It is hard core pornography with a vengeance ... This is one throat that deserves to be cut. I readily perform the operation in finding the defendant guilty as charged."

Yankees versus Royals

7-10 Channel 5 — On Major League Baseball Game-Of-The-Week the New York Yankees visit the Kansas City Royals with Jim Simpson reporting the action.

7-8 Channels 2-7 — Gunsmoke has a romantic, teary tale which puts Newly (Buck Taylor) into his new profession: medicine. It also gives him a wife for a while. The plot, done before, nevertheless works because you care about the characters. Jess Walton plays Newly's radiant bride-to-be. Storm scenes were filmed in the Simi Valley and interspersed with stock footage, to good effect. (R)

7-8 Channels 9-11 — The Rookies are assigned to help a security patrol officer in a good neighborhood which is plagued by a rash of burglaries. The officer (Pat Hingle) is an old buddy of Ryker's (Gerald S. O'Loughlin), who keeps saying he's the best cop he has ever known. The climax revolves around a holdup at a tennis club. (R)

8-8:30 Channels 2-7 —David Frost, the guest on a very funny Here's Lucy, hires Lucille Ball to sit next to him on transatlantic flights to keep him from being bothered. She messes things up so badly that she gets them both arrested as hijackers. (R)

8:30-9 Channels 2-7 — Andy Griffith plays a talent agent on The Doris Day Show who gives Doris a "look me up if you ever get to Hollywood" line. So Doris decides to follow through and do a story on phony agents. Yup, there's a twist of sorts. (R)

MYSTIC, Conn. (AP) — Actress Shelley Winters has received minor facial injuries in an automobile accident.

Miss Winters was injured when a car in which she was a passenger struck an obstacle in the road, police said.

44,000 scouts drink lots of soft drink at annual jamboree

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Boy Scouts attending the recent National Jamboree at Moraine State Park discarded some 200,000 soft drink cans which have been recycled into nearly nine tons of steel.

Hauled from the jamboree site to a scrap dealer in New Castle, the cans were first compressed into 65 solid two-footsquare bales, then taken to U.S. Steel Corp.'s Edgar Thomson Works in nearby Braddock, where they were transformed into steel.

A U.S. Steel spokesman said the steel was being rolled into new steel sheet to be sent to manufactures of new beverage cans, automobiles and appliances.

Some 44,000 scouts attended the week-long Jamboree-East, which ended about a week ago.

Queen gets exemption

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill exempting the steamboat Delta Queen from fire safety regulations for another five years was signed Saturday by President Nixon.

The Queen, last paddlewheeler carrying overnight passengers on the Mississippi and other inland rivers, needed special exemption because she is built with a substantial amount of wood.

Historic-minded citizens pressed for the exemption, which was approved earlier this year by Congress. The owners contended the fire hazard was minimal. They are building another similar boat which will conform to the Coast Guard safety regulations.

Actor Vincent Price sued for divorce

The divorce petition on Wednesday, said the horror film star and his wife had been separated since Jan. 15. They were married Sept. 30, 1949, in Tijuana, Mexico.

Mrs. Price asked custody of their daughter Mary, 11, and child support. The petition said disposal of the couple's community property had been settled by prior agreement.

Jimmy Greenspoon's wife given divorce

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) —Rock singer Jimmy Greenspoon, a member of Three Dog Night, has been divorced after six years of marriage.

The Greenspoons were married Nov. 10, 1967. The divorce was granted to Greenspoon's wife Monday in Santa Monica Superior Court on grounds of irreconcilable differences.

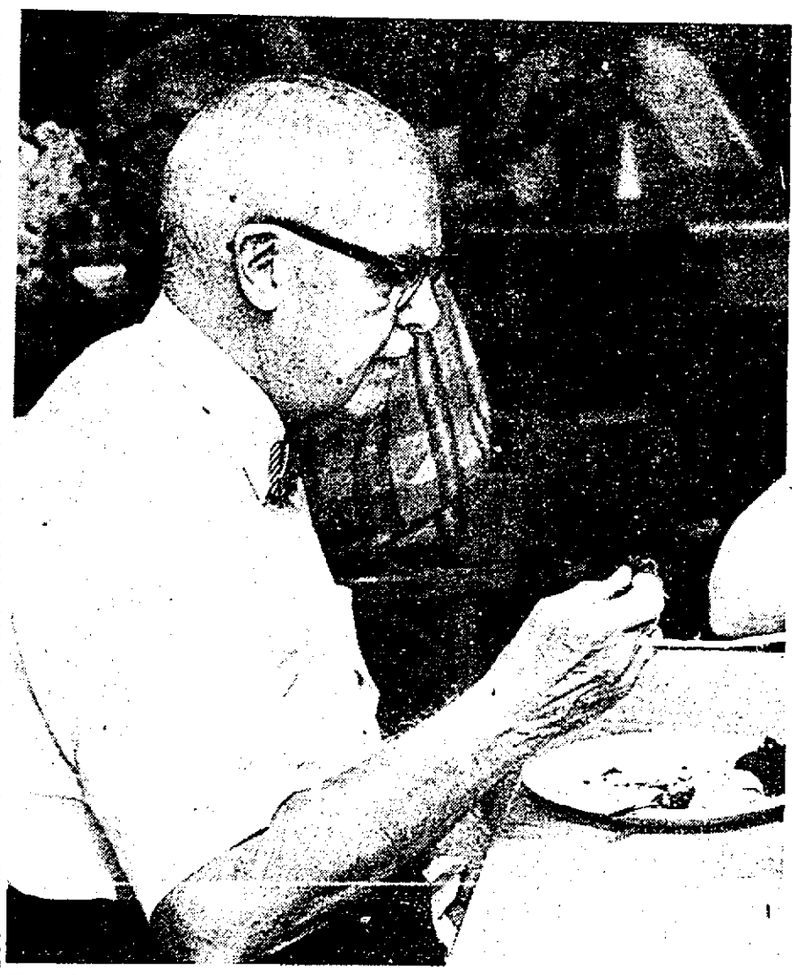
Friends greet residents of Peabody Manor

Tasty treat

Being at the head of the line has its advantages as Mrs. Julia Grosse found out Thursday at Peabody Manor. She was served by Mrs. Herbert Voecks during the annual ice cream social.

Time to talk

Thursday's ice cream social, an annual affair, provided time to talk for Mrs. G.E. Buchanan, Mrs. Vern Ames and Mrs. J.R. Chadwick. They were among the 200 present at the event sponsored by the Peabody Manor Auxiliary. The evening offered an opportunity for friends of the manor to tour the facility and view life as lived by its residents. (Post-Crescent photos by Tom Running)



Social evening

O.E. Moe enjoyed his cake and ice cream during an evening that brought Peabody Manor residents, families and friends, VNA board members and Peabody staff together.

Choice

Helping hand

Mrs. Chriss Larsen assists Charles H. Lueck during the Peabody Manor ice cream social. Proceeds from the fund raising event will benefit the residents and the facility by providing new chairs for the recreation room, floral arrangements and monies to continue monthly birthday parties.

Rocking is good for baby, expert says

Grandmother knew what she was talking about when she insisted that rocking was good for a baby. There is scientific evidence that rocking not only quiets a child but speeds social development, according to Lois Klessig, child development specialist at the University of Wisconsin-Extension.

Canadian researchers at the University of Western Ontario recently reported results of their work. These showed vigorous rocking gets the best results.

Two things influence how quickly the baby quiets down. One is rapid rocking. The other is the swing of the rocker, from front to back. A big swing works best.

However, the effects of rocking are temporary. If, after a period of rocking, the child is left alone, he gradually becomes active again, the study showed. Thus, it's the rocking that keeps him quiet, a fact many mothers recognize.

Besides quieting a child, rocking increases the child's affection for his mother. Since the child doesn't want to be unhappy, he welcomes this comforting he gets from his mother. He comes to depend on this.

Mother becomes more attached to her child, as well. Rocking gives her a quick, effective way to control crying so she is happier with her child. Between the two, closer relations develop.

This stimulates the baby's social development; the baby learns he needs others.

Extra handling and rocking also lead to more alertness, other research shows. The feeling of movement is one of the first senses developed in a newborn. The baby, therefore, is very responsive to rocking, and the rocking develops his response to motion more quickly. He is then able to mature in other ways.

In experiments, babies rocked frequently were quicker to grasp at objects and respond to sights and sounds.

An experiment with premature twins showed extra handling and rocking was especially beneficial. Because premature babies are confined and so alone and not handled much, they're slow to develop their senses. When one premature twin had extra handling and rocking and the other didn't, the "handled" baby gained weight faster and developed other responses more quickly than his twin.

Rocking, and the body stimulation that goes with it, appear to improve the relationship between mother and child and to help a baby's normal development.

A symbol of time

The hourglass, one of the universal symbols of recorded time, was actually the first purely mechanical device ever used for the purpose. The place of its invention is obscure, the Jewelry Industry Council finds, but it was known in ancient Athens.

The hourglass has changed but little over the span of centuries. It is slightly more accurate than it probably once was, as women who use the device for timing eggs are aware. A fine dry sand pours through a tiny cone from an upper compartment to a lower one and then the process is reversed for another rundown. Its errors, however, can be quite conspicuous when a woman stops to compare it with the precision watch she wears.

Twi-ettes play jamboree
